Senate Rules Group Asks $25,000 for Police Probe

Second Unanimous Committee Action Sets Stage for Final Approval Today

By Robert Bruskin

The powerful Senate Rules Committee yesterday added its unanimous approval to the resolution for investigating Washington police.

"Every member present expressed great concern at the conditions revealed which showed laxity in handling criminal cases," said Chairman C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.).

The resolution, bearing approval of the District Committee to spend $25,000 to conduct the investigation, was placed on the Senate calendar last night to be called up for a vote when its turn is reached.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the District Subcommittee, said he would wait until then before asking for Senate action. No attempt, he said, will be made to call it up by obtaining unanimous consent of the Senate for a vote out of its turn.

But with the backing of the Rules Committee, Senate leaders said they saw little possibility for defeat.

Senate aides said there was a good chance the police probe may get action today. The reason was that the Senate yesterday went part way through the calendar, then agreed to continue with it today. Thus the Senate could take up bills placed on the calendar yesterday.

As reported out by the committee, the resolution was strengthened to permit the investigation "during the sessions, recesses and adjourned periods of the Eightieth Congress."

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) presented the case for the resolution to the committee at its executive session. He, McGrath and Senator John S. Sherman (R., N. Y.) sponsored the measure after it was passed by the Metropolitan Police Department was concealing crime complaints from official statistics. It provides for a full and complete study and investigation of law enforcement and administration of all police forces in the District.

"The vote was unanimous and without argument," said Senator Speasard L. Holland (D., Fla.), a member of the Rules Committee and also of the District Subcommittee which will start the probe.

"All members present were of the same opinion—that an explanation of the practices disclosed should be sought," said Senator Holland.

"Of course, the investigation will cover a larger field than the subject covered in the newspaper exposure. We sincerely hope it will improve the present services."

"I know that the public will recognize that the committee hopes to render a public service. It has no preconceived ideas about punishing or rewarding anyone. Each member would much rather be doing something else."

The District Bar Association may also take some action, George E. McNeil, its president, declared.

General Likes

Army, Reenlists As a Top Kick

Denver, July 16 (U.P.)—Former Brig. Gen. Harold H. Richardson said today he went back into the Army as a master sergeant "because I like the Army."

Richardson, a veteran of two World Wars, formerly was adjutant general of the Colorado National Guard and headed the State Selective Service System until 1946. He served in China, where he was attached to the headquarters of Gen. George C. Marshall in 1946.

With 29 years of Army service, Richardson enlisted in the Regular Army after trying civilian life for several months.

Work Traps Suspects in $7000 Robbery

Fiction-like detective work yesterday snared two suspects in the $7000 robbery of Mr. and Mrs. Spruce Baird, 2705 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier, Md., July 10.

One of the two men, a 22-year-old lurcher room counterman, was identified by the Bairds yesterday afternoon in a police lineup of eight men.

Baird and his wife gave up some $7000 in gems and cash to two men who bound and gagged them at gunpoint in their apartment.

The counterman and his companion are being held on an open charge at the Tenth Precinct station, while police seek a third man believed to have been an accomplice.

Precinct Detectives L. B. Furr and V. H. Culpepper spotted the two men at 14th and Harvard st. n.w. last Monday night and checked their apartment because the counterman answered the general description of one of the Baird robbers.

The detectives noted the serial number of a watch found in the apartment, then learned through Maryland police it was part of the loot from the Baird home.

When they returned to the suspects' apartment Tuesday, neither man was there. Acting on a tip, the two detectives put a 24-hour watch on a restaurant where a girl friend of one of the men works.

Early yesterday one man showed up at the restaurant, and the detectives trailed him and the girl to an apartment in the 1000 block of M st. n.w. The other man sought had fled.

The girl, detectives said, called him at another apartment and induced him to return, saying the police had gone. Furr and Culpepper were waiting for him.

A hitch-hiker, dressed in a sailor's blue uniform, early yesterday morning held a knife on the man who gave him a ride and took his wrist watch.

The victim was Miles Johnson Frey, 38, of 4824 Reservoir rd. n.w., who picked up the hitch-hiker at 19th st. and Pennsylvania ave. n.w. about 1 a. m. He told police the man pulled a knife, demanded his wrist watch and then got out of the car at 24th and L st. n.w. He was between 20 and 30 years old, Frey said, wore a white cap, weighed about 200 pounds and was 6 feet, 1 inch tall.

But for many years now, he continued, the flood-swollen waters of the Mississippi and its great tributaries—the Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas and Red rivers—have dealt the Nation's economy a series of blows.

Both in lives and property, which "call strongly for the prompt use of more effective counter-measures."

"The drainage basin of the Mississippi River and its tributaries comprises nearly half of the Nation in area and population," Mr. Truman said.

"It is a rich central core from which stem goods and services vital to the entire country. Nature also requires the use of these flood plains for drainage. Consequently, we must pay the price for occupancy in these lands, either in the form of continued flood damage or in preventive measures."

In urging speed to combat what he termed "this continued threat," Mr. Truman said most of the necessary projects have already been authorized by Congress, but he said the 10-year program should also contain a smaller group of projects which have not yet been authorized. The projects, he said, are now being "planned and investigated."

"I recommend that this 10-year program be initiated during this fiscal year," the message said, and called for "prompt start."

In broad outline, Mr. Truman proposed a construction program including:

1. A coordinated system of storage reservoirs in the major tributary basins of the Mississippi.

2. Levees, floodwalls and diversion channels to protect cities, towns and farms in the tributary basins.

3. Soil conservation measures further up on the headwater tributaries of each major basin "to retard the flow and run-off and reduce the loss of topsoil which is impoverishing our farm lands and clogging our reservoirs and river channels."

As a corollary to flood control, Mr. Truman proposed the harnessing of flood waters for productive use, which he said will return to the Government a large share of the initial investment.

"Fortunately the means available to us for control of floods in many cases furnish the opportunity for use of water for irrigation, navigation and development of hydroelectric power," he said.

"Multiple-use reservoirs produce these and other benefits, in addition to flood control."

On the tax side, other big items are:

1. A one-cent-a-gallon tax increase on gasoline sold in the District. It will take effect under the new law, on August 1 and brings to four cents the tax rate per gallon. The gasoline tax boost is expected to give the highway fund about $1,600,000 a year more.

2. A 25 per cent increase in city water rates, effective the first of this month. In addition, the rate for laying water mains is hiked from $1.50 to $1.90 per linear foot. The changes are slated to increase water fund revenue by $800,000 a year. Besides that, the water fund has a membership limited to 6 or 16 members of each class.

Nimitz's order to investigate the charges apparently was based on charges by naval officers in letters to the Secretary of the Navy and by a prominent officer at a congressional hearing.

During testimony before the House Executive Committee July 1 on unification, Capt. John G. Crommelin, commander of the aircraft carrier Salpan, spotlighted what had previously been strictly a service matter. He told the committee Congress should "investigate well-formed and integrated officer cliques in the services" before attempting unification.

Truman Asks Prompt Fight On Floods

$250,000,000 Plan Covering Whole Mississippi Basin Given to Congress

By The Associated Press

A quick start on a 10-year program to check floods in the entire Mississippi basin and put the mighty waters to productive uses was urged yesterday by President Truman in a special message to Congress.

He asked $250,000,000 to get the work started.

Citing the long history of Midwest flood tragedies, the Chief Executive declared that flood control is a problem of "desperate urgency."

His message emphasized that "this Congress" should undertake the huge long-range task.

"The major opportunity of our generation to increase the wealth of the Nation lies in the development of our great river systems," he said.

Greeks Hit Rebels in Force; Turkey to Get 6 U. S. Vessels; House Group Won Over on Aid

Medium-sized Passenger, Cargo Ships Allotted Under Program

By Robert C. Albright

A nine-man House Appropriations Subcommittee, recently out to whittle the 400-million-dollar Greek-Turkish aid estimates, yesterday went all-out for the full amount.

The sudden turnaround followed detailed State Department testimony on the explosive Balkan situation, it was learned.

Some of the members were plainly a bit frightened by the recent serious turn in the Balkans. The subcommittee completed the big foreign aid appropriation bill, carrying general European relief appropriations and funds for occupied areas as well as "Truman Doctrine" Greek-Turkish funds, after a closed session with Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett.

Over the week-end House GOP leaders had called Republican members of the subcommittee into an equally intimate session with Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The full House Appropriations Committee will meet tomorrow to pass on the still tentative subcommittee bill. In addition to the full 600 million dollars to hurry aid to Greece and Turkey, without any new strings attached, the group is said to have provided:

1. Nearly the full 350 million dollars Congress authorized for European famine relief, with recent legislative terms and conditions again tied to the appropriation bill. In one quarter it was said that 18 million dollars for the satellite states of Poland and Hungary may not be included, on the theory that states under Russian influence will not accept American conditions.

2. Somewhat less than the 750 million dollars originally budgeted for American military zones "but all that they say now is needed."

Brought up to date on recent Balkan developments by Marshall last Saturday, the subcommittee appeared greatly impressed by Lovett's testimony yesterday.

Sources close to the group said members who two to three weeks ago were demanding further "justification" of the 400 million dollar Greek-Turkish appropriations got the information they wanted yesterday, and more.

300 of Guerilla Army Are Reported Wiped Out in One Heavy Engagement

Athens, July 16 (U.P.)—Supported by planes and heavy gunfire, the Greek army launched a full-scale attack late today on approximately 2500 guerrillas in the hills north of Ioannina, near the Albanian frontier, military sources reported.

Three hundred irregulars were reported wiped out in one engagement. The main guerrilla force was believed withdrawing eastward in an attempt to make a junction with other leftists fighting in the Grammos Mountain range.

Military sources said the army and straffing planes were in hot pursuit, and that infantrymen were eliminating rear-guard forces left behind to cover the withdrawal.

The attack was launched following a heavy bombardment and strafing of the slopes of Mount Gamila and an area including the villages of Kato, Pedina, Ano, Elathori, Paleoloutsas and Asprangelos where the guerrillas earlier were reported encircled.

The only serious resistance was encountered in the vicinity of Elathori and Asprangelos, approximately 19 miles from Ioannina, where 300 guerrillas were said to have been wiped out.

The guerrillas were part of a force which the government said invaded Greece from Albania and attempted to march on Ioannina, capital of Epirus and a strategic city of 20,000 near the Albanian frontier.

Earlier government reports from the fighting front indicated that 4500 guerrillas—many of them airborne reinforcements—had closed the jaws of a trap on the guerrillas in the vicinity of Mount Gamila, near the village of Ne-grahes, where the leftists were halted yesterday.

Napoleon Zervas, minister of public order, said that statements made by prisoners asserted that two of eight battalions in the attack were "foreigners." The invaders, Zervas said, were excellently equipped with heavy machine guns and mortars.

Sources in government circles said there was a possibility Greece would request American permission to use additional Truman Doctrine funds to more than double the size of the Greek army.

The government circles, expressing fear of what they said might be new invasions from the territory of Greece's Communist-dominated neighbors to the north, said that if the general situation grew much worse it might be necessary to request the American mission to sanction an increase in the army from 130,000 to 200,000 or 300,000 men.

Approximately half of the 300 million dollar American aid extended to Greece under the Truman Doctrine already has been earmarked.

Mackenzie King Wins Confidence Vote

Ottawa, Canada, July 16 (U.P.)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King and his Liberal government survived a brief parliamentary crisis in the House of Commons today by winning a vote of confidence, 84 to 54.

Mackenzie King had threatened to resign, and force a general election if defeated on an opposition motion of no confidence because of his refusal to increase benefits to disabled war veterans, war widows and their dependents.

N. C. Kiwanians Realize Error, Promise Negro a Cadillac, Too

Ahokee, N. C., July 16 (U.P.)—The Ahokee Kiwanis Club, abashed by the bitter criticism of fellow Kiwanians across the Nation, backed down today and announced that it was going to give a brand new $3200 Cadillac sedan to Harvey Jones, 23, Negro war veteran.

The other five persons who were convicted of contempt announced that they had resigned from the board of the Anti-Fascist group and were willing to purge themselves of contempt by answering See FASCIST, Page 5, Column 1.

"Cadillac-for-Jones" fund and contributions were pouring in when the local group did its about-face. Jones had just returned from fishing when he was told he would get the car after all. He said he was glad but he would "rather have the money."

President Rupert Massey of the Ahokee group said he did not know where the club would get the car for Jones, how they would pay for it, or when it would be presented.

"We haven't worked that out," he said.

Massey and other Kiwanians refused to discuss the incident further. They referred all questions to Armstrong.

Nimitz Orders Board to Probe Green Bowl, Academy Society

By Marshall Andrews

Charges that a secret society of Annapolis midshipmen had grown into a "vicious" officers' clique were under investigation yesterday by the Navy Department.

A board of inquiry was ordered by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, to find out whether the "Green Bowl" was an innocent schoolboy society or a means of advancing the professional careers of its members.

The "Green Bowl" was said to have been formed at Annapolis in 1907 with a membership limited to 6 or 16 members of each class.

Nimitz's order to investigate the charges apparently was based on charges by naval officers in letters to the Secretary of the Navy and by a prominent officer at a congressional hearing.

During testimony before the House Executive Committee July 1 on unification, Capt. John G. Crommelin, commander of the aircraft carrier Salpan, spotlighted what had previously been strictly a service matter. He told the committee Congress should "investigate well-formed and integrated officer cliques in the services" before attempting unification.

British Welcome Proposal

A foreign office spokesman in London said Britain welcomed the proposal and hoped agreement could be reached on a date subsequent to the Canberra meeting.

But Secretary Marshall also in London said Britain welcomed the proposal and hoped agreement could be reached on a date subsequent to the Canberra meeting.

Both said the society was a schoolboy organization and that they had quickly forgotten about it after graduation. Fechtler said he welcomed the investigation because he did not want his name associated with an organization publicly described as "vicious."

He added that he had been assured by Rear Admiral J. L. Holloway, superintendent of the Naval Academy, that the "Green Bowl" no longer existed there.

Navy regulations prohibit formation of or membership in secret societies.

Vandenberg Changes Stand

'Voice of America' Sanction Likely Before Adjournment

By Mary Spargo

Congressional action to give full sanction to the State Department's "Voice of America" programs probably will be taken before the July recess, Capitol Hill authorities said yesterday.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved an amended version of the House-passed Mundi bill giving the Office of Information and Cultural Affairs legislative standing.

The committee recommended that $100,000 be appropriated for a joint congressional investigation of the entire program.

Reversing an earlier stand, Chairman Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said he would try to push the amended bill through before Congress adjourns.

Halifax, N. S., July 16 (U.P.)—Fifteen crew members of the 2000-ton destroyer Micmac were reported injured today following a collision between the warship and the 10,000-ton freighter Yarmouth County.

The collision occurred in the North Atlantic off the coast of Nova Scotia.

The Micmac was en route to England, and the Yarmouth County was en route to the United States.

The collision occurred at about 10:30 p. m. local time.

In Romania Purges Hint Death Blow To Opposition

Bucharest, July 16 (AP).—Purge raids by Romanian police indicated tonight the leftist government of Premier Petru Groza might be preparing to deal a death blow to its principal opposition as arrests of National Peasant Party members were reported unofficially to have reached 100.

A Communist newspaper said today the 14 National Peasant Party members arrested Monday were trying to escape to Turkey. They included National Peasant vice president Ion Mihalache and Secretary General Nicholas Penescu. The paper said their luggage contained large amounts of foreign currency, arms and ammunition.

Some sources said three other planes bearing opposition leaders left the country successfully before Mihalache's group was seized. Bucharest was outwardly calm as the purge of oppositionists continued. Two main highways leading to the north and east from Bucharest were closed, which the government explained by saying "a motorcycle race" was in progress.

Newsmen could find no National Peasant member who had personal information with which to refute or confirm the government's explanation that Mihalache's group had been trying to leave the country. Members of the Liberal Party, also oppositionists, said the story was plausible.

Last month all 33 National Peasant members of the Romanian Parliament walked out of Parliament and subsequently were threatened by the government with loss of their seats if they did not return by July 25. A majority of the 33 then voted to return, but a minority group opposed returning. None of the majority group has been arrested.

The Communist newspaper today captioned a photograph of the arrested group: "Sold to Foreigners."

World Bank Sends Mission to Survey Brazil's Economy

The World Bank said yesterday a two-man mission was being sent to Brazil to "review and amplify information on economic conditions in that country" and to explain details of the Bank's operations to officials of Brazil's Central Bank.

A World Bank officer said Brazil had not applied for a loan or made any overtures to an application. The mission is in keeping with the Bank's policy of sending experts to study conditions in its member countries.

The mission members, Loan Officer Marcus H. Elliott and Economist Jacques Toris, left by train for Miami yesterday and will arrive in Brazil by plane Saturday.

New Hungarian Election Plan Won't Bar Repeater Voting

Budapest, July 16 (AP).—A new Hungarian election law, which provides no restrictions on how many times one person may vote, was presented to a parliamentary committee today.

A Hungarian legal expert, who translated and explained the law for American correspondents, said "it will assure the victory of the Communist-dominated coalition government" which includes the now thoroughly weakened Smallholders party. He said it will "make equally certain, the defeat of opposition parties, principally the outspoken anti-Communist Szabadsag (Freedom) party led by Dezo Sulyok, who apparently is disqualified as a candidate."

The new election law provides that elections may take place within 60 days after its enactment and sets up restrictions governing which parties may participate, who may become candidates and who may vote.

The law was written by Interior Minister Laszlo Rajk, a leading Communist, and Justice Minister Istvan Ries, a left wing Social Democrat.

In referring to the law, Rajk said he had followed "the lines of the constitutions of most European countries" and explained the restrictions aimed at small opposition parties by saying "the peaceful and quiet governing of a country and healthy parliamentary procedure are only possible when functional parties do not threaten the unity of the national assembly."

In setting out voting procedure, the law specifies that any qualified voter may cast his ballot anywhere in Hungary he happens to be on election day.

The law makes no provision for ascertaining whether a person votes only once and provides no

Administration Still Seeks Passage of Stratton Measure

Secretaries Marshall, Patterson and Harriman pleaded with Congress yesterday for prompt passage of the Stratton bill, which would admit 100,000 displaced persons from Europe each year for four years.

Their emphatic statements showed that the Administration had not given up its fight for the bill in spite of Monday's warning from Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) that it had very little chance of enactment now.

Secretary Marshall argued that passage of the bill would show other countries that "we practice what we preach." Secretary Patterson contended it would save the United States heavy expenses of maintaining the displaced persons in Europe and would put much-needed talent and skills at the disposal of the United States.

Marshall and Patterson testified before a House Judiciary subcommittee which is holding hearings on the bill.

Harriman said in a written statement read for him that congressional "procrastination" on this problem "reflects little credit upon ourselves and suggests a callous neglect of the desperate need for assistance of these victims of war."

At one point Secretary Marshall tangled with Representative Gossett (D., Tex.), who said the United States had already taken far more than its share of aliens.

"That's the significance of the Statue of Liberty," the Secretary retorted.

In his prepared statement Secretary Marshall predicted that the absorption of displaced persons by the United States would remove a persistent source of friction with Russia.

"There is a sharp divergence of opinion between the Soviet government and our own," he explained.

"The Soviet viewpoint is that those displaced persons born in areas now subject to the Soviet governmental authority are Russian subjects and under obligations to return to such territory. They demand that we forcibly repatriate the D. P.'s."

"Our view is that it is against American tradition for us to compel these persons, who are now under our authority, to return against their will to those or other areas under governments whose political and economic systems they are unwilling to accept."

"This very difference of opinion has been a constant source of international friction. It will remain such a source of conflict and friction so long as these displaced persons remain in Germany and until they can strike new roots elsewhere in friendly soil."

Rather than pass no bill at this session, Secretary Marshall suggested, it would be better to legislate for admission of 100,000 this year.

Where Greeks Battle Guerillas

HEAVY FIGHTING REPORTED—Black, oval area near the Albanian border is where Greek guerillas' main force was reported trapped by three Greek government columns (arrows) yesterday. A showdown battle was reported imminent near villages of Vasilikos and Yeroplatanos. At Leskovici (underlined), in Albania, wounded guerillas were being treated in a military hospital, according to the Greek war minister. New, large-scale fighting by guerillas was feared in the Florina area (upper right) facing the Yugoslav border.

marked tentatively for military uses. Consequently, any such increase in the army would bite sharply into the remainder, which was slated for civilian use.

Military authorities, meanwhile, said precautions were being taken to thwart any new invasion of Greek soil. They quoted intelligence reports as disclosing the existence of a source of guerilla concentration centers in Yugoslavia and three in Albania, from which new offensives could be launched.

War Minister George Stratos said last night that the irregulars "cannot escape and have to give battle."

He pictured the current guerilla offensive as an "invasion" from Albania, aimed at setting up a new Communist state in northern Greece.

Top military authorities said they were particularly concerned about the possibility of a new, large-scale guerilla operation in the Florina area, adjacent to the Yugoslav frontier.

The informants declared that a leftist operation might be launched through the classic invasion route of Monastir Gap, in an effort to take the pressure off guerillas now fighting within Greece.

A United States Embassy spokesman asserted that the British and American governments were "exchanging information here, in Washington and in London" on the border fighting.

War Minister Stratos said yesterday that the United Nations penalty for voting more than once. The proposed legislation changes the wording of the 1945 election law to provide that all persons who belonged to the now defunct party of National Unity cannot be candidates for election. The previous law said that persons who resigned from the party after it became Fascist could be candidates.

Under the 1945 law, Sulyok was elected to Parliament, but under the proposed law Sulyok and at least three of his followers, all members of Parliament, would be disqualified in the coming elections.

One of the great dangers was said to be that a Balkan state in the Soviet sphere, or a new Russian-dominated Macedonian state, might formally declare war on Greece.

U. S. Already Committed

In that event, it was pointed out, the United States would already be actively behind one of the belligerents, Greece, while Russia would be as clearly behind the other combatant.

"If that happens," one informant said, "World War II may have already started."

Subcommittee members clamped a strict secrecy lid on what they were told by Marshall and Lovett.

The fact that they received sobering information was reflected in their prompt approval of the full $400,000,000. Some members were known to have aired doubts that the aid on the way and that promised would be adequate.

The only talk of further restrictions came on the $350,000,000 previously authorized famine relief fund for Italy, Austria, Hungary, Greece, China and Trieste.

Congress had previously approved a set of stringent conditions for such aid, requiring recipients to sign agreements in advance permitting free press and radio reporting, labeling of goods and American supervision down to each township.

The subcommittee decided yesterday to write these conditions into the appropriation bill itself. In addition, the subcommittee was said to favor omitting funds for the so-called satellite states of Poland and Hungary, but not completely slamming the door.

If Poland or Hungary actually agreed to the American terms, it was said funds would be provided.

The subcommittee is understood to have included funds for Austria but with some skepticism as to how much could be used if Russia, as reported, refuses to comply with the American conditions in the Russian occupied zone.

If the Austrian government signs an agreement to comply with the terms, it was pointed out that Russia in effect might nullify it by turning down the conditions in her zone. Since the authorizing act requires equal distribution throughout a recipient state, it was said Russia by so doing might block relief for all of Austria.

Two Years Cut Off Jail Term for Col. Murray

Yokohama, July 16 (AP).—The prison sentence of Col. Edward J. Murray, former Army custodian of the Bank of Japan who was convicted of "misappropriating" $200,000 in diamonds, today was reduced from 10 years hard labor to eight years "because of his war record."

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, ordered the reduction for the Palo Alto, Calif., officer. He was arrested at San Francisco with approximately $200,000 in diamonds in his possession, but he maintained throughout his trial he considered them "legitimate war souvenirs."

Shopper Given Term

London, July 16 (AP).—The Hon. Lydia Victoria Noel-Buxton, 25, daughter of Lord Noel-Buxton, former Labor Cabinet minister, was sentenced to eight months in prison today for obtaining articles from several London shops with intent to defraud.

France Asks Colonial Aid Tally Sheets

Paris, July 16 (AP).—France proposed to the European Economic Conference today that colonial resources of all member nations be included in drawing up the economic balance sheet in a coordinated reconstruction program under the Marshall Plan.

Addressing the opening session of the new organization's "cooperation" or steering committee, Herve Alphand of France, said the 16-member nations should reckon overseas production of essential materials in compiling their needs and assets.

French sources said no opposition was expressed to this move which would encompass British colonies, France's territories in Africa, Asia and America, the Belgian Congo, Portuguese colonies in Africa and Asia, Dutch possessions, and even Denmark's Greenland.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin already has pledged Britain's colonial resources to continental cooperation.

Wide Data Sought

Alphand's proposal was part of a more comprehensive French project on procedure which the committee is to take up for decision at its next session tomorrow. This eight-section project, in the form of a questionnaire to be submitted to participating governments, even suggested that the assistance needed to increase colonial production of fats, woods, minerals and other materials be tallied.

The questionnaire would give the committee data on difficulties due to the war, such as destruction and loss of population; accomplishments by each nation for its own reconstruction; contributions which have been made or will be made to the reconstruction of other nations; reconstruction efforts projected for the next four years; a tally of the surpluses and deficits of each nation in foodstuffs and raw materials; estimated import needs and export possibilities in mechanical equipment and industrial products; estimates of the mode of balance payments; contributions each could make to other nations under such headings as credits, manpower, migration.

Bevin Goes to London

French officials said the purpose of the questionnaire was to determine quickly what each nation is doing for itself, what it can do for its neighbors and what it needs from the United States.

The committee will decide tomorrow which of these questions it wants answered now. When a questionnaire is finally adopted, French sources said, copies may be sent to all four occupation commanders in Germany, or the commanders may be asked to appear before the committee.

Bevin, as president of the conference, formally opened the committee's deliberations with a speech this morning. He then left for London.

United States Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman, winding up a survey trip through Europe which he said was not connected with the Marshall Plan, told a news conference the United States was satisfied with the first progress of the economic conference and was now awaiting the concrete results.

Bill for U. S.?

Britain May Try to Shift Zone Upkeep

London, July 16 (AP)—Authoritative informants said today that hard-pressed Britain will ask the American taxpayer to shoulder an additional annual burden of 250 million to 350 million dollars in the occupation costs of the economically fused British-American zones of Germany.

The informants said the United States Government will be told that this country, with its resources already strained to the limit, cannot meet her share of the one-billion-dollar cost of the present 50-50 basis the next two years.

At the same time, a highly placed government source said there was a "strong possibility" Britain will be compelled to cut her imports from the United States in December because her dollar credits will be near exhaustion.

The informant said Britain might be forced to cut imports because of the decision in Washington to delay congressional consideration of the Marshall Plan until spring.

Parley on Ruhr Coal May Cover Industry

The coming Anglo-American conference on Ruhr coal may be expanded, at British insistence, to take in the whole problem of reviving industrial production in western Germany, The Post learned yesterday.

Secretary Marshall told his press conference that the meeting would be held in Washington next week, but that its subject matter was still being worked out in consultation with the British.

program, and the simple authority given in the appropriation measure. The increasing tension in this Nation's relations with Russia and the overwhelming evidence that America's motives in connection with the Marshall Plan and the Greek-Turkish aid program are being systematically distorted throughout the world account for the reversal in GOP policy, it was reported.

The congressional cut of funds for the information service from the budget estimate of 31 million dollars to $12,400,000 meant that nearly half of this country's information officers had to come home. In many cases only skeleton staffs were left abroad, in some other cases this country's information centers were closed entirely.

Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.), who steered the original bill through the House said the amendment adopted yesterday by the Foreign Relations Committee was entirely "agreeable" to him.

Presumably this would mean that the House will accept the amendment of the Senate acts in the next 10 days before the July 28 adjournment date.

If Congress acts now on the authorization measure, the way will be open to seek a deficiency appropriation later if the world situation remains such that the State Department has to expand its services.

Much of the congressional opposition to the program has centered about the personnel employed. When Secretary of State Marshall made a last final plea to the Senate Appropriations Committee for an additional 3 million dollars for the program he was told the OIC Chief William Benton was the real stumbling block.

The powerful members of the Appropriations group bluntly told the Secretary that Benton would have to go if the department hoped to persuade Congress to be more generous.

Decision to press for action this session increased the belief in informed quarters that Benton would resign on or about August 1.

Conference Also Asks Enactment Of Training Bill

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Salt Lake City, July 16.—The Governors of 44 States—23 Republican and 21 Democratic—today expressed "faith and confidence" in Secretary of State Marshall and threw their prestige behind an all-American foreign policy.

They also called on Congress to enact into law President Truman's plan for universal military training for American youth.

These two actions highlighted the final session of the thirty-ninth annual Governor's Conference, which opened in Salt Lake City three days ago. The vote of the Governors was unanimous. It had to be, since under the rules one "no" vote could have blocked action.

No Action on "Plan"
The Governors did not take action on what has come to be called the "Truman Doctrine" and the "Marshall Plan." No resolutions touching these were introduced.

What they sought to do, the Governors said after their closed-doors session, was to show the world that this Nation's State executives were united on a foreign policy that was above all partisan considerations.

The original resolution was introduced by a Republican, Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey. This combined a tribute to Secretary Marshall and an advocacy of an "American foreign policy" backed by both great parties.

Failure to act on the Marshall plan by no means indicated hostility to it. Gov. Earl Warren of California, for example, said he agreed "in principle" with the Marshall plan, but he pointed out that the Governor's Conference could hardly be expected to endorse it until the nations now meeting in Paris had worked out an agreement among themselves.

Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah said the resolution did not mention specifically the Marshall Plan because the Governors "do not know yet what the plan entails, and as an organization we are unable to endorse any plan of which we are not fully cognizant."

The resolution of praise for Secretary Marshall grew out of his speech here Monday night and his off-the-record talk which followed.

The picture the Governors got was this: If the United States does not help its friends in Europe to regain economic health, there is a great danger that their governments will be captured by Communists. That would give Russia virtual control of the continent, thereby dropping an iron curtain against American trade and jeopardizing both the prosperity and the security of this Nation. It would be necessary for the United States to work out some entirely new policy for dealing with the rest of the world.

Committee Votes For Private Firm To Feed Senators

The Senate Rules Committee voted yesterday to contract with a private firm for operation of the Senate restaurant and cafeteria. Under the plan, Canteen Food Services, Inc., of Chicago, Ill., will take over operation of the restaurant in the Capitol and the cafeteria in the Senate Office Building. The firm now operates restaurants in a number of industrial plants.

In the present setup, the Senate's restaurant and cafeteria are run by the architect of the Capitol Office, with the Rules Committee holding final responsibility.

For several years the restaurant setup has operated at a loss, with deficits being made up by appropriations.

Scientist Calls War Training A Racket and Waste of Funds

Dr. Allan Bates, a Chicago scientist, testified yesterday that universal military training was a "political racket" which was "irrelevant" in the last war and "will be totally useless in the next."

Bates, 45, and vice president in charge of research and engineering development for the Portland Cement Association, appeared before a House Armed Service Subcommittee. He said that during the last war he served in a secret civilian capacity in the war zones as part of a unit charged with "smashing" German scientific development.

Despite assurances from their top Army leaders that universal training would safeguard them from invasion, Bates said the nations of Europe fell one after another in record-short time before the Nazi blitzkriegs.

Finally, he said, "a handful" of scientists who developed radar halted the German air forces and less than 1,000,000 American troops without universal military training routed the German ground forces.

American scientific knowledge, industrial ability and troops, Bates claimed, did what "tens of millions" of European troops trained through peacetime conscription were unable to do.

Without elaboration, Bates said:

Fig Is Reported Disputing Soviet On U. S. Grant

Vienna, July 16 (AP)—Chancellor Leopold Figl has rejected a Russian charge that the United States 100-million-dollar relief grant would mean an American stranglehold on Austrian economy, well informed sources said today.

Figl rejected the allegation in a letter to Col. Gen. L. K. Kourasov, the Russian commander in chief. Publication of it was postponed when it was learned that Kourasov was out of town. A spokesman indicated it might be published early next week.

Figl was reported to have told Kourasov that the American relief program was designed only to help Austria's economic rehabilitation.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told reporters today he will leave July 21 for a 10-day, "social basis" visit to Brazil at the invitation of Brazilian President Dutra.

India, Philippines Lose Move to Win Territories Voice

Lake Success, July 16 (AP)—India and the Philippines today lost their fight to win a full voice for dependent territories in the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East.

The fight took place in the Commission's 10-nation committee of the whole, which has been debating membership in the economic body since July 10.

The committee, after defeating Indian and Philippine proposals, finally adopted a compromise solution offered by the United States and Siam. The vote was 7 to 3, with India, the Philippines and Russia voting in the negative.

The compromise provided that dependent territories could be admitted to the commission as associate members provided that the nation responsible for their international relations presented their application.

Senate Unit Votes Probe of Kilgore Reelection

The Senate Rules Committee late yesterday ordered a "complete investigation" into charges of ballot irregularities in the November reelection victory of Senator H. M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.).

The committee authorized an investigation of the vote in 12 West Virginia counties on a basis of complaints brought by Tom Sweeney, Kilgore's Republican opponent.

A committee aide said the vote to order the investigation was unanimous.

The committee approved a resolution finding that on the basis of preliminary investigations "vote frauds, election irregularities, and the purchase of votes were prevalent," in the Senatorial election.

Atom Bomb Plant Will Be Permanent

Multimillion-Dollar Modernization
Project for Los Alamos Is Announced

By Elton C. Foy
Associated Press Staff Writer

The United States is putting its atom bomb factory on a permanent basis.

This grim footnote to the long and thus far fruitless effort to set up world controls over nuclear energy came to light today in an Atomic Energy Commission announcement of plans to make permanent, and effectively modernize the war-built town of Los Alamos, N. Mex.

The first A-bomb was made there and tested at Alamogordo,
N. Mex., two years ago today.

The announcement said Carroll L. Tyler, retired Navy captain and ordnance expert, will be in charge of the Los Alamos laboratory,
"where a multi-million-dollar improvement program is under way,"
Tyler succeeds Col. Herbert C. Gee, Army engineer, who has been on loan to the commission since it took over the Army's Manhattan
Project at the start of this year.

The announcement coincided with another disclosure relating to

Treaty Parley Faces Delay

dictated yesterday that he was anxious to get started with the Japanese treaty.

A reporter asked him at his press conference whether the proposed conference could be delayed indefinitely "by objection of any one of the interested parties."

What the questioner meant to ask, the Secretary replied, was whether the United States would go ahead with the conference if Soviet Russia refused. He smiled and said he would have to wait with his answer until such a situation arose.

He added that he was thinking of going ahead with the Japanese treaty this year before the German treaty would be concluded.

No Replies Received

No reply to the American proposal for a conference had been received yesterday from Russia or from any of the other countries involved. There was every indication, however, that it would meet with loud and stubborn objections from the Kremlin.

The United States has suggested that conference decisions be taken by a two-thirds vote without a veto for the Great Powers. This, in itself, is sure to make the idea distasteful to the Russians.

Furthermore, Moscow is expected to object to the 11-nation membership of the conference and to argue that the Japanese treaty should be left to the Council of Foreign Ministers—a course to which the United States and Great Britain are firmly opposed.

The State Department issued a formal statement yesterday discussing that the calling of a conference August 19 had been proposed last Friday at a meeting of embassy representatives of the countries concerned. It was not a formal invitation, but rather a request for their comments.

Proposal Is Outlined

On the American side the proposal was outlined by Assistant Secretary John H. Hildring, in charge of occupied areas, and John Carter Vincent, director of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs.

The statement said these points had been outlined to the other Pacific countries:

1. An 11-nation meeting would include "all of those nations with a primary interest in Japan";
2. Other states at war with Japan should be able to present their views during the drafting of the treaty; later there should be a general conference of all the states at war with Japan;
3. The treaty conference should be attended by deputies and experts rather than by foreign ministers, who would be too busy;
4. The United States Government "would be pleased to be host for such a conference if desired by other interested powers." The official statement mentioned no site, but it was learned that San Francisco as well as Washington was suggested.

Finally, according to the statement, the United States said it would like to get the views of the other governments on the treaty-drafting problem, and it invited the embassy representatives "to discuss the matter further after they had had an opportunity to consult with their respective governments."

The other governments are still considering the matter, and the next steps will depend upon their answers.

Russians Ask A-Materials Quota System

Lake Success, July 16 (AP)—Russia called today for a third atomic convention which would set up a quota system for limiting output of atomic materials to countries taking part in a world-wide control plan.

In a surprise declaration to a closed meeting of the political committee of the United Nations
Atomic Energy Commission, Andrei
A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, declared that a quota system should be established by a special convention.
This convention, he said, should contain the points on which nations could assume their obligations in the quota system.

Gromyko already has proposed two conventions to the U. N. The first would ban atomic weapons immediately. The second would establish controls for atomic energy under an international control organ.

Quota Discussion Blocked

News men asked Gromyko whether his proposal included only the mining of ores.

"No," he replied, "by the quota system I meant it as a general principle which could be extended to the whole atomic process."

He thus broadened the proposition to apply, in general effect, to atomic materials from the mine ore stage to the final stage of atomic fuel ready for use.

Declaring that the question of quotas is of the "utmost importance," Gromyko said he would like for the delegates to discuss it thoroughly. Frederick H. Osborn, United States, said, however, he would not discuss quotas at this time.

Asks Rule by Convention

Gromyko said Russia considered some kind of measure should be adopted to protect all nations and that an appropriate way would be to establish a system of quotas in accordance with which the nations would develop their atomic energy and occupy their proper place in the atomic setup.

Gromyko said he was opposed to letting the Atomic Commission, working on a day-to-day basis, fix the quotas. He said Russia felt this was too important for the agency and should be handled by the special convention.

The United States has proposed a single convention wrapping up atomic control in one package with ample safeguards. The commission and its committees have debated atomic control for more than a year with no agreement between Russia and the United States in prospect in the near future.

New York, July 16 (AP)—A secretary to Representative Adam Clayton Powell (D., N. Y.), who last Sunday suffered his second heart attack in two months, said the Congressman's office here received "several hundred" calls today from persons who heard an erroneous rumor that Powell had died.
Powell is "resting comfortably" in Dr. Keller's Hospital at Westhampton, N. Y., and will be there about two more weeks, the secretary said.

Chinese Face Restrictions

Nanking, July 16 (AP)—China's project would endanger the safety of 3,000,000 people on the south bank of China's mighty river.

New trouble flared along the Yellow River as UNRRA withdrew river-repair personnel under threat of renewed civil war fighting in areas marked for a temporary truce. Chinese Communists and Government troops kept up their battles in Hopei and Shantung provinces.

Many of the mobilization order regulations, it was learned, incorporated stringent emergency measures implanted last winter in an effort to halt ever-rising inflation.

Program Effective Friday

The mobilization program, effective Friday, provides for Government control of prices of daily necessities, movement of commodities, the use of capital—including its movement within China—and other financial activities. Even stricter controls over foreign exchange than at present threaten severe punishment for black marketing in gold and foreign currencies, particularly U.
S. dollars.

Strikes, sabotage, closure of factories and "other activities liable to disturb the social order" will be subject to government action.

In a separate move, all newspapers and periodicals published by Chinese nationals abroad were ordered to register with a government agency. They were warned against publication of statements
"harmful to China's foreign relations." There have been repeated press reports of Communist activities among Chinese in Hong Kong and Singapore.

UNRRA reluctantly withdrew its employees from Yellow River repair projects after the Government served notice that it could not be responsible for their safety in areas where Chinese Communists remain active.

Dutch Rebuffed Indonesian Hostilities Predicted

Batavia, Java (Thursday), July 17 (AP).—Dutch sources predicted without reservation today that armed hostilities would break out in Java as a result of the rejection of Dutch proposals for a compromise settlement in Indonesia by Amir Sjarifoeddin, premier of the Indonesian Republic.

In a radio address from Jogjakarta early today, Sjarifoeddin declared he had turned down yesterday the Dutch proposals for solution of the Indonesian problem "in the full knowledge of our responsibility." He said that he was "awaiting the consequences of this decision, but the truth in this affair is on the republican side."

"We want peace, but peace and truth," the Indonesian premier said.

"Indonesians! I declare once again the situation is critical. The Dutch attitude leaves no doubt they want to avoid the road of peace."

The rejection was a complete reversal of Sjarifoeddin's position as stated on high authority here earlier today.

Earlier, Sjarifoeddin was reported to have approved a compromise personally in conversations yesterday with Hubertus J. Van Mook, Dutch Governor General, and the Netherlands Commission General.

The police issue had been the last major stumbling block to a Dutch-Indonesian agreement. A reliable authority said the compromise called for an all-Indonesian republican state police to hold initial responsibility for maintaining order, with joint Dutch-Indonesian police force stepping in whenever an emergency occurred.

the questions of the House committee.

They were given suspended sentences of three months in jail and $500 fines. They will serve the three months on probation.

They are Leverett S. Gleason, publisher of comic magazines and Readers' Scope; Mrs. Louise Kamsky, housewife; Herman Shumlin, a leading theatrical producer; Dr. Jesse Tolmach, prominent dermatologist; and Mrs. Bobbie Weinstein, housewife.

All the defendants were released under $500 bond pending appeal of the case.

The defendants gave two reasons for refusing to divulge their records to the House committee, which was investigating so-called Communist front organizations.

They claimed before Congress and at the trial that their committee records were in the sole custody of Helen R. Bryan, secretary to the board. Miss Bryan was not indicted with the others, but was named in a separate true bill, which has not reached the trial stage.

The other reason they gave was that the House committee might put persons aided by the Refugee Committee on a blacklist.

Present in the courtroom at the sentencing was Ernie Adamson, who as counsel for the Un-American Activities Committee was instrumental in getting the defendants cited for contempt.

"You know, these defendants talk about helping Spanish refugees. I have never come across a Spaniard who was their beneficiary. Most of their help went to political agitators from Central Europe and Russia, our records show," Adamson told reporters.

The position of those defendants who reiterated yesterday their unwillingness to be probed by the House committee was given in a statement by Fast, which Justice Keech, read before sentencing.

Justice Concerned Lest Defendant Claim Unfair Trial

Gerhart Eisler's sister, black-haired 52-year-old Ruth Fischer, took the witness stand against him in District Court yesterday and identified him as a Communist Party leader in Austria and Germany between 1920 and 1926.

She, too, she said, belonged to the Communist Party at the time, and she and Eisler both were called to Moscow in 1923 for a German Communist Party affairs conference attended by Leon Trotsky and Joseph Stalin.

She was the first of the principal Government witnesses in the trial in which the Leipzig-born Eisler, whom the FBI has called the No. 1 Communist agent in the United States, is charged with false statements on an application for an exit permit to leave the United States in 1945.

Much of the trial yesterday was concerned with arguments between attorneys over statements Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz sought to present to the five-woman, seven-man jury, but which Eisler's attorneys contended were prejudicial or carried political implications.

District Court Justice James W. Morris denied "at this time" a defense motion for a mistrial, sought on grounds that remarks in Hitz's opening statement Tuesday afternoon had "inflamed" the jury "beyond the point of cure."

The justice, however, expressed "surprise" some of the remarks had been made. He ordered stricken from the record a remark by Hitz that Eisler's "real purpose" in coming to the United States was "to disrupt the economy of the United States to further the ends of Moscow."

Morris Resolved on Fair Trial "I do not think the defendant in this case is charged with attempting to wreck the economy of the United States," the justice declared.

"I am greatly concerned and anxious that we not let come into this case anything that could be considered inflammatory—anything that could give credence to the defendant's claim that he cannot get a fair trial in this jurisdiction."

The defense entered in the record accounts of the trial from yesterday's Washington Post and Washington Times-Herald as evidence of "the general impression" left by the Government attorney's opening remarks.

Hitz said he had made the remarks objected to to show Eisler's communistic affiliations.

The justice also excluded from the jury the reasons Eisler's sister said he gave her in Paris in 1933 for coming to the United States. Miss Fischer, who said her real name was Alfreda Eisler Planchot, but that she used "Ruth Fischer" as a pen name, gave the reasons after the jury had filed from the courtroom.

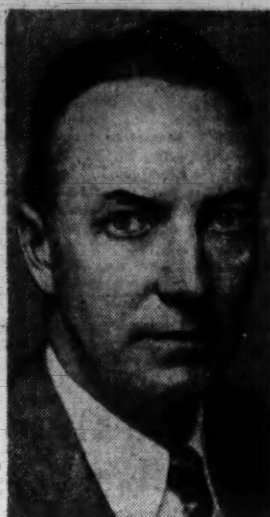

"He said," she told the court, "the Communist Party in the United States is idiotic—idiotic, stupid. They behave like idiots. We can change and we must change our policy now when Roosevelt is elected. I will change the party line completely."

1 Dead, 16 Hurt By Road Mines In Palestine

Jerusalem, July 16 (AP).—At least a dozen British soldiers were wounded, some seriously, in the detonation of two road mines tonight on the outskirts of Jerusalem. One soldier was killed and four others were wounded earlier in three road mine blasts near Petah Tikvah.

The explosions outside Jerusalem occurred almost simultaneously with a statement delivered to Jerusalem newspapers by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, in which the resistance group "took the responsibility for acts committed this evening which were intended to relieve Natanya from the siege."

Natanya, the Palestine diamond center, and the surrounding area have been put under military rule to facilitate a search for two kidnapped British sergeants held as hostages for three condemned members of Irgun Zvai Leumi.

Hearings End on Payments To American Victims of Japs

Hearings closed yesterday on a bill to set aside 35 million dollars for civilians who were held by the Japanese during the war. But there was little hope of action before Congress adjourns.

The bill—offered by Senator McGrath (D., R. I.)—would earmark 35 million dollars of German and Japanese property in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian. Out of this fund American citizens would have a right to be paid $5000 for their claims for injury or loss of personal property and $7500 or more for being interned two years or more.

A score of people who were prisoners of the Japanese took the witness stand yesterday, before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee and told how they—and 6000 others—were starved and mistreated in the prison camps.

Kem Asks Special Committee On Mo. Vote Probe Handling

The Republican drive for a full Senate investigation of the Justice Department's handling of the 1946 Kansas City, Mo., election fraud charges was launched yesterday by Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.).

Kem called up his motion to discharge the Judiciary Committee from consideration of his resolution to investigate the conduct of Attorney General Tom Clark and his department.

The committee, comprised of seven Republicans and six Democrats, voted seven to six Monday to table the resolution indefinitely. Senator William Langer (R., N. D.) split away from his fellow Republicans to give the Democrats a majority.

In debate on the floor, Kem reflected the Republican wrath at the desertion of the North Dakota Senator.

Kem stressed the fact that the frauds in question were committed in the Missouri primary in which President Truman took a personal hand to defeat incumbent Representative Roger Slaughter (D.), a personal foe. President Truman's candidate, Enos Axtell, was defeated by a Republican in the general election.

Angry Kem charged that when the President decided to defeat Slaughter he "did not go to the electors of the district but sent for Jim Pendergast."

A vote on Kem's motion was put over until today. Republican leaders insist they have the votes to discharge the committee and create a special investigating group but some Democrats promise to talk "at length" against the move.

Kem's demand grew out of the Justice Department's investigation into alleged irregularities in the Kansas City Democratic primary in which Slaughter was defeated by Axtell, who was endorsed by President Truman. Axtell lost the general election race to Representative Reeves (Republican).

Investigation Reopened
Earlier this year, the Justice Department closed its investigation, but has since reopened it.

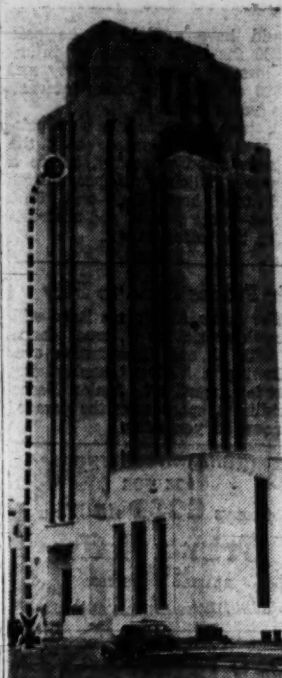

Kem declared that the only action that Clark had taken was to "tie the hands of the FBI and to whitewash the whole incident."

"Charges of dereliction of duty of a grave and serious character have been made against the Attorney General of the United States. If as a result of a full hearing no additional evidence supporting the charges is developed, no harm has been done to Mr. Clark or any member of his staff. If Mr. Clark is innocent of the charges, he is entitled to—and no fair-minded man will deny him—a triumphant vindication as a result of a full and complete investigation."

"On the other hand, if additional material evidence is available and can be produced as I now assert, the Senator making the charges should not be denied an opportunity to fully present the evidence."

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D.,

S. C.) asked Kem if there was not a Republican majority on the Judiciary Committee which rejected the Missouri resolution.

"There are at least six Republicans who customarily vote with the party," Kem replied.

Johnston: "Why do you say six when there are seven Republicans on the committee?"

Kem: "There may be seven, but there are at least six."

cluding the improvement of municipal and industrial water supplies, new recreational areas and opportunities, the preservation of fish and wildlife, and the abatement of pollution.

"The problem confronting us is of prime importance in our national life. . . we must press forward vigorously toward a solution."

The President withheld any formal recommendation for passage of the pending Missouri Valley Authority bill, thus leaving to future decision the controversy over regional authorities.

His plan, he said, "does not change the desirability of the ultimate establishment of valley authorities," but, he said:

"The urgency of the flood problem is such that we must take steps to expedite this program without awaiting the determination of the administrative pattern of the various regional valley programs."

Only last week, Mr. Truman told a news conference that he favors the Missouri Valley Authority but that the emergency was flood control.

The 250 million dollars he asked Congress to appropriate this year, supplementing funds already appropriated, would allow 10 million dollars for reclamation, three million dollars for soil conservation, and 237 million dollars for the War Department's Engineer Corps flood control.

Mr. Truman noted that in the 10-year period from 1937 through 1946, floods in the Mississippi basin have cost the Nation more than a billion dollars and hundreds of lives.

Upper Mississippi Valleys have been "even more appalling," he said, and the total damage may exceed the 500 million dollar loss suffered in 1937.

"What we need to do is to take immediate advantage of the Mississippi basin's authorization, totaling almost six billion dollars, which the Congress has already voted for flood control and related purposes," he said.

"Let us through the next 10 years accelerate our program and put this money to work, together with such additional moneys as may be required and as our economy from year to year shall permit."

Negro's Right to Work Called Essential Part of Labor's Fight

Nashville, Tenn., July 16 (AP).—The Negro's fight for the right to work is part of the labor struggle to eliminate job discrimination against all citizens, the Institute of Race Relations at Fiske University was told today.

The right to work is essential and its limitation is prohibited under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, Charles H. Houston of Washington, D. C., legal counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said.

Henry Lee Moon, Negro CIO official from New York, said the CIO is proceeding on the basis that the Taft-Hartley labor bill does not exist as a law. During a panel discussion he called for the defeat of Tennessee's two United States Senators because they favored the bill.

"Although I may be violating the law I urge you to work for the defeat of United States Senators Kenneth D. McKellar and Tom Stewart," said Moon, adviser on minority relations to the CIO's Political Action Committee.

Negro Attorney A. T. Walden of Atlanta, speaking at the morning session, said the South now realizes it cannot circumvent the enfranchisement of Negroes by the legislative method and will seek other means. He added he believed Negro voting is "here to stay."

Negroes are becoming "politi-eligible, said he had no intention of giving or selling it back.

"I'd wanted a new Cadillac and this was the only way I could get one," he declared. "I don't see why I should give it back and they haven't asked me to."

Armstrong declared in Salisbury that "the policies of Kiwanis International strongly disapprove of lotteries in any form. While the Ahoskie club contends the manner in which it awarded this car—selling tickets to a dance—was not a lottery, there is a very thin line of demarcation."

He cautioned all clubs to be careful in their money-raising activities but said no action would be taken against the local group.

Armstrong would not confirm that he had ordered the Ahoskie club to reverse its action or that Kiwanis International would pay for the new car.

He said the action was taken after he talked with the local directors this morning.

Lotteries are illegal in North Carolina and the attorney general's office in Raleigh said it had no record of a request for a ruling from the Ahoskie Club.

New England Kiwanis officials in Boston promised that Jones would get a new automobile if there was any "un-American" action in the deal here.

In Washington Senator Hatch (D., N. Mex.) discussed the matter on the Senate floor.

Hatch reported that the Ahoskie Club had announced it would buy another $3200 car for the ticket holder, and that he was abandoning his earlier proposal that the national organization pass the hat.

City Revenue Bill Is Signed

gets one million dollars on the increased Federal payment.

3. Revamping of the city's personal and business income tax setup. City officials have been uncertain how the individual income tax changes will affect city revenue. The new law calls for a franchise tax on unincorporated businesses equaling 5 per cent of their income over $10,000. This would raise about $900,000 a year.

Rates Stay the Same

For individuals, results of the new law for those now paying the income tax will be slight. Rates stay the same—1 per cent on the first $5000 of taxable income; increasing 1/2 of 1 per cent with each additional $5000 to a top rate of 3 per cent on income over $20,000.

The new law, like the present one, says that persons domiciled in the District on the last day of the tax year shall pay the income levy. It also says that residents, other than Federal employees, shall file a return if they live here more than seven months of the year.

These residents would pay nothing here if they had to pay State income or State intangible property taxes amounting to more than what the District income levy would be for them. If the tax they had to pay to a State was smaller, the District would collect the difference between its income levy and the amount of the State-collected tax.

Federal employees with a legal domicile elsewhere would not have to pay District income taxes on their official salaries and on income from sources outside the District. They would, however, have to pay the District tax on the income from a business or private job in the District.

Exemptions Changed

For those paying the District income tax, there are two main changes. One is in the exemptions. Present exemptions are $1000 for a single person, $2500 for married, and $400 for each dependent. The new law makes the exemptions $1000 for a single person, $2000 for married, and $500 for each dependent.

The second big change is that the new law permits use of a simplified return, similar to the Federal one. Its use would be restricted to those whose gross income minus deductions for dependents was $5000 or less, all derived from salaries, wages, dividends and interest. The short return could not be used by those claiming credit on their District tax for taxes paid to a State.

With the simplified return, the taxpayer could read his tax from a table. The table is set up to deduct an automatic 10 per cent of income in place of all the detailed special deductions allowed in the law. Along the same line, persons with gross income, less allowances for dependents, totaling more than $5000 a year could claim a flat $500 deduction in place of separate special deductions.

The new income tax law is effective for income received after January 1 this year, with the returns due next April. Also in the new law is a section for doubling the present 50-cent automobile inspection fee. The new $1 fee would apply to both autos and trailers. The new rates are to become effective in 30 days, dated from the President's approval. The increased fees are designed to make the inspection service pay for itself with an extra $65,000 a year.

Mrs. Roosevelt Novel Parking Signs Placed Is Assailed for 'Pseudo Uplift'

Paulsen Spence of Walden, N. Y., and Helen Spence, La., told a Senate subcommittee yesterday that relations between whites and Negroes were "very cordial" in Louisiana "up to the time Mrs. Roosevelt took a hand in the matter."

Spence testified before a Senate Labor subcommittee in opposition to legislation to prevent racial or religious discrimination in employment. In his statement, Spence said:

"I am sorry to say that since the advent of the New Deal, relations between the colored people and the white people have deteriorated. And I believe that it can be safely said that no single person was ever more disliked by the white people of the South than the former President's wife."

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.), author of the bill, which is patterned after a New York law, apparently had seen the Spence statement in advance and asked Spence to read a portion that said:

"Senator Ives is not fooling me in his great desire to help the colored people. If Senator Ives did not know that the southern Senators would filibuster this bill to death, I seriously doubt if he would even consider offering it."

Ives broke in with "I don't think you understand me at all."

He said he had been asked to head a commission to draft the New York law and added:

"I didn't want to do it because I thought it would be the end of me politically."

Ives said he accepted, however, and the commission drafted a bill and "in the two years this law has operated in such a way that not a single individual has been haled into court."

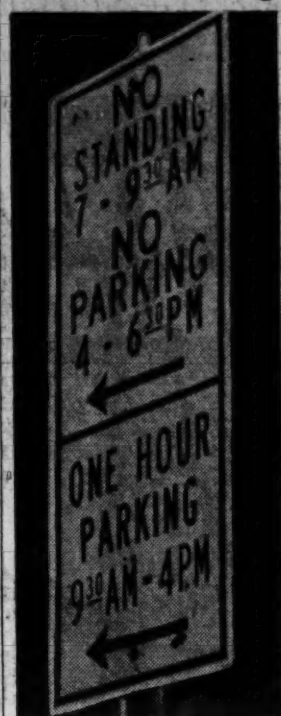

Frank J. Llooney, Shreveport, La., lawyer, told the committee that his bill is "ultra unconstitutional" in that the right to hire is a "natural right" protected by the fifth and ninth amendments to the Constitution.

He said that, if the bill became law, he believed that in Louisiana "the white man would refuse to work with the colored man."

Two Virginians—T. Brady Saunders, president of the Miller Manufacturing Co., Richmond, and Raymond P. Long, Virginia State planning engineer, Richmond—spoke against the bill.

Saunders said that "this law may work in New York, but it won't in Virginia—Virginia is not yet ready for it."

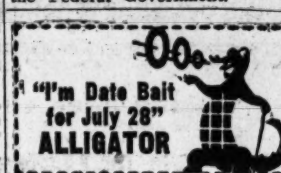

Long also contended Virginia "is not yet ready for this type of legislation" and said that when the

A surprise visit he made to the Cheltenham School for Boys led to the immediate dismissal of one of the institution's supervisors and the start of an investigation into reports that 11 inmates had been beaten in a two-week period.

Sprague, board president of the State Training School for Negro Boys, said he and Wallace Reidt, assistant managing director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, found "inexcusably filthy" conditions in three of the school's cottages.

He said further that:

1. At least 11 boys in the "security" cottage told him they had been whipped.
2. He found "locked and unattended" in a wire storage cage in the security cottage a boy who had undergone a tonsillectomy two days earlier.
3. He found a whip in the security cottage.

4. In addition to the investigation of whipping reports, he had ordered an investigation of "other evidences of mismanagement" he and Reidt discovered Saturday night.

5. After he arrived and found how things were, he called four other board members, who immediately came to the Prince Georges County institution.

6. Reidt, who was recently appointed executive assistant to the Cheltenham board, was sent to the school yesterday to make a survey and draw up plans for cleaning up and repairing the buildings.

Defendant Hits At Government In Slave Trial

San Diego, Calif., July 16 (AP).—Alfred Wesley Ingalls declared today that Dora Jones, Negro maid, and his wife are accused of "enslaving" her "not a damn law deal by the United States of America."

The declaration by the former Lynn and Boston, Mass., lawyer and politician, was in reference to his feeling toward the woman, who has been in "protective custody" of the FBI as a material witness in the case for five months.

"I'm very fond of her," Ingalls said, adding that he believed that when Dora testified for the Government she was "befuddled and hardly knew what she was saying."

He stated that he had been unable to get in touch with Dora in the five months and expressed hope that "we'll be allowed to see her when this thing is over."

He added that he felt "she couldn't be as happy with anyone else."

Ingalls, 64, and his wife, 62, who the Government charges reduced the maid to submission under threats of jail because of an affair of nearly 40 years ago in Washington with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband, Walter Harman, supported testimony they had provided financially for Dora by offering wills drawn March 1, 1943, in evidence.

The wills would set up a bank trust from which the woman, now 58, would receive an income of $15 a week during her life. Upon her death, the residue would be divided between a daughter, Mrs. Helen Roberts of Berkeley, Calif., and Alfred Castendyk, son of another daughter, Mrs. Ruth Castendyk of Chicago.

Weak, Watery Blood Blamed for Making Men and Women Look and Feel Older THAN THEIR YEARS

How do you feel at the end of a day? In that old time pop and drive lacking? You checked up on your blood strength lately? Thousands now require the divine good looks and vitality through the use of vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, general run-down, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that Senae is a completely effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the Senae formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, Senae helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically low little or none—thus the stomach will have little cause to get belly with gas, bloated and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on Senae today. As vigorous blood surges through your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your cheeks—firm flesh, fit out below girdle. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store, Senae Tonic helps build sturdy health.

Grecian Urn

It looks as if the signal has gone out of the Kremlin to stir the pot that for so long has been boiling on the Greek frontier. Trouble has spread all the way from Macedonia to Epirus; that is to say, from the Bulgarian to the Albanian border. The place names in this latter zone recall the great days in 1940 when the Greek mountaineers were holding back Mussolini's legions. Now the Greeks are facing a lesser but an even more obnoxious tyrant than Mussolini in the person of Albania's Hoxha. Hoxha runs Albania as a fief of Moscow. Indeed, he is said to be right now in Moscow, where he has apparently been ordered to facilitate an invasion of Epirus. The malcontents are reported to be 50 miles inside Greek territory, and the news speaks of members of the international brigade among the captured prisoners. This brigade has been trained under Muscovite auspices. As a unit it is probably being held in reserve for action against coveted Macedonia when sufficient Greek soldiers have been diverted to Epirus.

This is the warlike situation that confronted our Dwight Griswold when he arrived on Monday in Athens. The first problem in Greece has become the frontier. If the United Nations, at the instance of Soviet Russia, will not undertake to pacify the frontier, the United States must step into the breach. This is our right under Article 51 of the Charter which gives us liberty of action in safeguarding the peace while the Security Council is considering its own responsibilities toward an endangered member nation. The U. N. Commission found a situation prejudicial to peace on the Greek frontier and recommended the setting up of an international patrol. But Soviet Russia is acting at Lake Success as an accessory of the guerrillas by blocking the United Nations. In these circumstances our course should be crystal clear. Having decided, by act of Congress, to contain Russian aggression toward the Mediterranean, faced by Russia's aim to swallow Greece, we must not flinch from a task which can become dangerous only by pusillanimity in implementing it.

Indeed, the situation has deteriorated solely on account of our dillydallying. Between March 12, when President Truman called for "immediate and resolute action," to May 22, when the aid to Greece law was passed, nearly three precious months were taken up in debate. Now a holdup of the means for giving effect to the law is being staged in the House Appropriations Committee. The committee, in our judgment, is playing politics with American security, for what started by being a boy's job has become a man's by the mere efflux of time, and nothing less than American organization of Greek defense is now required. It is the most pedantic kind of theorizing to prate about intervention in Greece's internal affairs. There are no internal affairs left in Greece, and there would have been no Greece at all today without the U. N. Commission and the subsequent Truman Doctrine. Words and the world's eyes have so far saved the little kingdom as the stumbling block of the Russian bear as it seeks to cut the Mediterranean and bottle up the Middle East. Action only, and action on an impressive scale, can keep Greece saved.

And while we are organizing the military defense of Greece, we must likewise take steps to end the governmental panic in Athens. Secretary Marshall said yesterday that the mass arrests in the Greek capital last week were made without our knowledge. Mr. Griswold before he left said they were an internal affair of the Greek government. We strongly disagree. Having undertaken our present mission, we must share responsibility with the Greek government. It would be criminal to save Greece only for Greek corruptionists. That was not the Administration's notion of what should be done in Greece even before the declaration of the Truman Doctrine. On February 4 Secretary Marshall said, "Economic health can be restored only by a comprehensive program in which the whole Greek people participate, making their appropriate contribution—a dynamic program, submerging their partisan differences, of political amnesty and the disarmament of bands; of tax reforms, modernization of the civil service, realistic tax controls, and the even-handed administration of justice. . . ."

Now that we are about to aid Greece with our money and our personnel, we are under a moral obligation to the Greek people and to our own conscience to see that these reforms are carried out. We cannot sit idly by, for example, and see Greeks thrown into jail for no reason other than that they demand what Secretary Marshall said on February 14 was essential to Greek independence and recovery.

Flying Fears

It seems only fair to report that the New Leader, a well-known and very intelligently edited weekly journal of Socialist opinion, has come to the defense not only of the people who are having these apparitions of flying saucers but also of the newspapers which have devoted a good deal of space to the testimonies. "There are," says the New Leader, "basic fears in our time, reflections of the miseries of the race of man, and more intangible anxieties which are fear-ridden portraits of the miseries which still lie ahead. And in the national unease, the timorous living, which stem from legitimate fears over unharnessed physical developments, and rampant aggressions and aggressors utilizing these modern techniques, are productive of reflective mirrors which call for understanding and not for scorn."

Now that, as you can see for yourself, is deep and learned language, and to be honest, est, we are not sure that we quite understand it. But if we catch the general drift, it is something like this: that what with the atom bombs and the jet-propulsion rockets and Mr. Molotov and the N. K. V. D. and all the devastation in Europe and the evil results of a century or so of laissez-faire economics we have got ourselves into a rather fearful and apprehensive frame of mind. And since most of us don't know precisely what it is we are afraid of, some of us seek to rationalize our fears into something visible. So even if there aren't any flying saucers, there is plenty to be afraid of, and it's not nice to laugh at people who think they see them.

Well, this at any rate is an interesting point of view. Let us concede that we are all frightened, and that there are plenty of realities to be frightened about. That seems to us, however, as good a reason as any for not inventing any additional fears. If the flying saucers afforded catharsis for our fear, it might be different; but it has not worked out that way. They have left us, as the New Leader implies, more frightened than ever. And yet, assuming for the sake of argument that what the witnesses saw or thought they saw were really flying saucers, they seem after all to have been quite harmless. For although the stories about them got a little wilder with each successive edition, there was nothing in any of them, as far as we can remember, to indicate that the saucers did any harm except to give an additional scare to people who were scared enough already.

Congress Should Return

The apparent agreement between President Truman and the Republican leaders of Congress that there is now in sight no necessity for Congress to reassemble next fall seems to us extremely shortsighted. If Congress adjourns on July 26, in accord with present plans, it will inevitably leave a large volume of unfinished business. Many of those measures could be properly disposed of during the autumn months. Left to the regular session beginning next January, there is grave danger that they will be caught in the political merry-go-round of an election year.

Congress has worked with great diligence during the last six months, and it has passed a large volume of legislation, including such momentous acts as the new labor law and the program of giving aid to Greece and Turkey. Unquestionably its members need a breathing spell, and this ought to be taken during the remainder of the summer months. It is equally clear, however, that next fall would be the best time to deal with such urgent legislative matters as universal military training, the admittance to this country of a portion of Europe's displaced persons, the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, flood control, comprehensive tax legislation and many other issues that demand nonpolitical deliberation. Even more important will be legislation to support the Marshall plan. To risk throwing this problem into the 1948 session along with politics, appropriations and a plethora of domestic measures would be incredibly poor planning.

Even next fall the political pots will probably be boiling, but not with anything like the intensity that must be anticipated in 1948. When Congress meets next January it will have the appropriations bills to pass, and a disconcerting legislative jam can scarcely be avoided if some of the more difficult problems confronting it have not been previously removed. Next year, moreover, an early adjournment must be taken for granted because of the national political conventions and the campaigns that will follow. We cannot help thinking that the most practicable course would be for Congress to come back about next September 15 and get as many as possible of the major problems off its chest before the big guns of 1948 begin to boom.

World Bank

The successful launching of two bond issues by the International Bank is a happy augury. The heavy oversubscription to the loan indicates that American investment capital is available for support of the kind of sound developmental undertakings that the Bank was created to finance. As President McCloy said, "The confidence which private and institutional investors have displayed in the Bank's securities will be a great encouragement to the directors and management of the Bank in the work yet to be done." It will also give a lift to the spirits of foreign heads of state to know that the Bank, having made contact with the investing public, has every reason to hope for continued support of its efforts to assist world recovery by directing capital to productive use.

FIRST MOWING

The Young Mowers

There were seventy cocks or may
On the slanted field
Under the spread of starlight
At the end of the day—

Propped on a fragrant heap,
Their faces upward,
And the sea-night everywhere around, enclosing,
They lay near . . . but not touching . . .

They smelled the scratchy sweetness of the sun-cured grass;
They held within their frugal senses,
(Unblemished by a single spoken word)
The passage of the cool and traveling airs across their eyes;

They tasted salt, and saved the flavor on their careful lips
With urgent thirst;
They knew that radiant quietness possessed by those unguessed few who wait
And, scarcely breathing, them, accumulate
Joy for the wealth of long, long years still far away!

Letters To The Editor

U. S. And Greece

I would like to submit two documentary footnotes on United States foreign policy, and two comments.

Note 1. (The Post, July 13): "Bucharest.—Romania announced today the rejection of United States and British protests against recent political arrests, as interference in Romania's internal affairs. (The United States note protested against the 'arbitrary arrest without warrant or charge' of hundreds of opposition party members and others. It added that the arrests appeared to be a 'deliberate effort at the suppression by terroristic intimidation of democratic elements opposing the present Communist-dominated regime.'")

Note 2. (The Post, July 10, under the headline "Arrests in Athens Held Greek Affairs—State Department Sees Roundup of Reds No Concern of U. S."). "Assistant Secretary of State Norman Armour yesterday enunciated what sounded like a hands-off policy toward the Greek government's police measures.

"Armour said the reported arrest of 2000 alleged Communists in Athens was a matter of internal administration for the Greek government to decide."

(The Post, July 12): "The United States has already shipped 35 million dollars worth of surplus war material to Greece to help the Greek army in 'anti-bandit' work, former Gov. Dwight P. Griswold, chief of the American mission to Greece, disclosed yesterday.

"The phrase 'anti-bandit' drew a laugh from a press conference Griswold held on the eve of his departure for Greece."

Comment 1. The United States will have to correct such inconsistencies if it is going to win the confidence of European peoples, appear as a champion of truth and justice, and avoid charges of bad faith toward the Russians.

Comment 2. The United States should realize that a substantial part of the antigovernment movement in Greece is not Communist and "bandit," but genuinely democratic, but that the Greek government in its repressive measures does not admit the distinction.

I would like to add a personal note in high praise of your Greek correspondent, M. W. Fodor. I have just come back from a 10-month stay in Greece, and from my own knowledge and impressions I am convinced that Fodor is really well informed and doing an excellent job in his reporting.

ROBERT SCRANTON,
Washington.

World State

In support of the resolution for strengthening the United Nations introduced in both Houses of Congress on July 9, may I quote the following from the article written by Walter Lippmann for One World or None, published in 1946:

"In this condition of the world (an uneasy equilibrium among the sovereign and powerful states), a new event may and can, and should be made to intervene. That event would be the decision of the American people to make the formation of the world state the principal objective of their own foreign policy."

"This can be made to happen. For the American people, who have learned that they cannot live in isolation, have no taste and no aptitude for the career of a world power among world powers, and no faith that good can come of it. Intuitively and by tradition they believe that security and serenity and great achievements require a universal order of equal laws and can never be had in a mere equilibrium of sovereign states. It would conform, therefore, with American ideals and with American interests to dedicate the power and influence of the United States to sponsoring and pressing for the formation of a world state.

"If that were the dynamic core of the foreign policy of the United States, the influence of this decision upon mankind would be enormous. The United States is at the zenith of its power and for the time being at least is the sole possessor of the most devastating weapons ever manufactured on earth. There is no doubt that if at this moment in history the United States raised the standard, many nations would immediately rally to it and in all the other nations more and more of the people.

"Never was there such an opportunity for any people as ours, though briefly if we do not seize it. We can use the preeminence of our military power so that an ideal for all mankind, not the United States of America as a national state, may dominate and conquer the world."

I submit these words from one of the great leaders of American thinking in the hope that their timeliness now may help to give guidance to American statesmen and ship and to the deeply alarmed American people.

Corporate Profits

The Wall Street Journal reports net profits of 14 textile corporations of $109,435,562, as compared with $34,205,787 in 1945, an increase of 219.9 per cent. Fourteen corporations in the paper and pulp industry increased profits 162.9 per cent in 1946 over 1945. Distillers' profits for eight corporations were 162.9 per cent higher for the same period.

The iron and steel industry in spite of the steel and coal strikes showed an increase of 53.7 per cent as compared with 1945. Food products and packing house industries, closest to the family purse, had profits in 1946 that were 78.9 per cent above those of 1945.

In Business magazine we find the statement that corporate profits after taxes were 12 billion dollars in 1946, topping the 1943 record of $9,950,000,000 and four billion dollars before the war.

Armour's net income increased from $9,172,538 in 1945 to $20,791,128 in 1946. Swift & Co. had profits of four million dollars after taxes, more than 30 per cent increase, and so on ad infinitum.

Could not corporations take smaller profits while remaining financially safe and stable, thus making it unnecessary to increase wages, which would make it possible to keep prices lower, increase buying power and save millions of people from malnutrition and starvation? J. A. STRONG, Oberlin, Ohio.

Turkey In World War II

The Turkish government is preparing a White Paper which unquestionably will represent one of the most important collections of diplomatic documents on World War II. The Turkish White Paper will reveal all the secret documents pertaining to Turkey's relations and negotiations with both the Axis powers and the Allies.

The official Ankara newspaper Ulus just published a series of articles by Prof. Nihat Erim who is well known as a mouthpiece of the government. These articles are to be considered as a specimen of the forthcoming White Paper and therefore of the greatest importance.

The Turkish White Paper, according to Professor Erim, will reveal for the first time the secret clause of the mutual-assistance pact concluded between Great Britain, France, and Turkey on October 10, 1939. By this secret clause Great Britain and France were bound to the immediate delivery of war materials worth 25 million dollars.

As the White Paper will show, Britain and France did honor their pledge, thus preventing Turkey from living up to the treaty and declaring war on Germany in April, 1941, when the latter invaded Yugoslavia and Greece. Turkey declared that she was unable to wage war because of lack of arms and ammunition. The British government accepted the Turkish point of view and agreed that Turkey would only play a defensive role by preventing the Germans from marching through Turkey.

According to the Turkish revelations to be officially published in the forthcoming White Paper, the Turkish mobilization was completed by April, 1941. Half a million men were concentrated in Thrace and on both shores of the Straits. At this moment, Hitler let the Turkish president know that he had no intention of attacking Turkey.

Charter Reform

By Barnet Nover

If The U. N. Is To Function

THE ACUTELY critical situation in Greece underlines the wisdom of the move, now under way in Congress, to strengthen the United Nations by curbing the great power veto.

For some weeks the Security Council has had before it the report of its Balkan Commission. That body, appointed last December, spent months looking into charges that Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia were supporting guerrilla warfare in northern Greece.

Evidence accumulated by the commission makes it clear that these charges were not unfounded. Russia and her Communist-dominated satellites in the Balkans are out to destroy the present Greek government and set up in its place a regime that will do the Kremlin's bidding.

It was for the precise purpose of blocking such a development, which would leave the entire Middle East open to Soviet domination, that, at President Truman's request, Congress authorized large-scale aid to Greece and Turkey.

DEMOCRACIES move slowly. President Truman's appeal to Congress was made on March 12.

Only now, more than four months later, has the Griswold mission arrived on the scene in Greece. Actually, Congress has yet to appropriate the Greek aid funds that were authorized.

In the meantime, the pressure on Greece from the Soviet north has not diminished. If anything, it has been stepped up considerably.

The success of the Soviet-supported guerrilla campaign in Greece would now serve a double purpose. It would not only round out Russia's sphere of influence in the Balkans by eliminating the only non-Communist government in the peninsula. It would also deal a tremendous blow to American prestige at a time when 16 European nations have banded together to carry out the Marshall plan.

IT IS AN OMINOUS circumstance that the increase in Soviet pressure on Greece is taking place at the very moment when the Security Council is considering the problem.

Russia and her Balkan satellites do not appear to be particularly concerned with what the Council may do. Should it reach a showdown on the question of carrying out the recommendations of the Balkan Commission, Russia can always block action by employing her veto.

In the meantime, the mere threat of a veto has been enough to prolong the Greek discussions in the Council and thus gain time for Russia's satellites along the Greek frontier to continue their dirty work.

A BIPARTISAN group of Senators, headed by Homer Ferguson, Republican of Michigan, and a group of House members headed by Walter Judd, Republican of Minnesota, have introduced resolutions whose common purpose it is to bring about a revision of the United Nations Charter.

It must be recognized that statesmanlike and absolutely necessary as this move is, it can have no immediate effect so far as the strengthening of the U.N. is concerned. At San Francisco, despite the vigorous objections of the Canadian and other delegations, the amendment of the Charter was made extremely difficult.

The Charter provides for two distinct but related methods of amendment. In the first place, an amendment can go into effect if it is approved by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly, followed by ratification by two-thirds of the members of the United Nations. The approving nations must include, however, "all the permanent members of the Security Council." There is that veto again.

Amendment is also possible through a General Conference of the United Nations. Again final approval requires the unanimous vote of the Big Five.

THERE IS NO reason to believe that Russia is in the least inclined to give up her veto power. She regards it as far more important than all the rest of the Charter since it enables her to block action which may be contrary to her interests and the interests of her satellites.

Russia's record as a U. N. member suggests, in fact, that her only interest in the new world organization lies in preserving the veto and the negative power it gives her.

Nonetheless, it is to be hoped that Congress will give its full possible approval to the Ferguson and Judd resolutions.

Such action would clearly demonstrate America's determination to make the U. N. a real instrument of peace, would also combat the frequently made charge that the United States is interested in retaining the veto provision in the Charter as it is Russia.

It is a measure of the importance of the problem that the House yesterday passed by voice vote a bill to create a 24-member National Science Foundation to supervise scientific activities for the Government and to promote work in the field of "pure science."

The Senate which has approved a similar measure, the National Science Foundation Act, has leaders have put it on the "must" list for this session.

The proposed foundation would be authorized to "farm out" research projects on a contract basis to private institutions. It would operate no laboratories of its own. The measure authorizes appropriations but mentions no specific amount.

A major branch of the foundation's work would lie in "division of national defense." It also would be subdivided into groups for medical research, physical sciences, biological sciences, and division of scientific personnel and education.

The latter division would be in charge of fellowships and scholarships for promising young scientists.

Henderson Sees High Prices Leading to Another Smash

By Dillard Stokes

Leon Henderson—former price administrator—warned yesterday that the present boom's going to go smash unless Congress does something right away to save it.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) shouted objections when Henderson told the Joint Economic Committee that retail sales are doing a nose dive because prices have gone ahead of wages. Henderson said profits are swollen now, but that sales dropped 10 per cent between February of last year and this May.

Yet the output of cars, washing machines, radios and other durable goods was going up all that time.

Scraping of Controls Blamed Henderson blames the scraping of the wartime economic controls for the spot he said the country is in.

"When the wartime controls were scrapped," he said, "we let ourselves in for a wild boom, just like that which followed the scrapping of controls after World War I. The last time, we paid for the boom, with the collapse of 1920 and 1921. Unless something is done and done promptly, we are going to pay for today's boom the same way. For today, just as in 1920, prices have been allowed to get out of hand. Once again, the price structure is shot through with distortion and unbalances."

What to do? Henderson urged scaling down all prices, to cut out half of the increase since June, 1946, and putting up all wages that have not shared in the 1947 boom of 15 cents an hour. He would set up a price adjustment board to get out of hand. Once again, the price structure is shot through with distortion and unbalances.

Taft differs. He says the economic committee hopes to write a report that will show Congress the way to keep good times in this country from now on. Taft is its chairman, as well as head of the Republican Steering Committee in the Senate. He differed hotly with Henderson, saying: "There is no evidence today that prices are out of line with wages. Taking the whole picture, wages have gone up more than prices." Taft figures that factory workers can buy 20 per cent more with their pay than they could eight years ago.

Taft and Henderson got together on two points: That luxury taxes ought to be cut out and that the building industry ought to be investigated. Henderson said the state of the building industry was a stinking shame and Taft pointed out that the Republicans already have asked the Senate for an inquiry.

O'Mahoney Hits Rent Hikes Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) jabbed at Taft for the rent hikes allowed by the Republican rent control bill. He asked if Taft thought the higher rents would help purchasing power. Taft said they would, because the landlords would put the money into repairs.

Henderson was speaking yesterday for Americans for Democratic Action.

Richard V. Gilbert, former OPA economist, clashed with Taft when he took the stand later in the day. Too much money is going into business, Gilbert said, and Taft snapped that he did not think so, and neither did the National Association of Manufacturers.

Lawrence Martin, associate editor of the Denver Post, told the committee we need a "Marshall plan" for poor sections of this country, especially in the West. He asked for fair freight rates, more power projects, building more industries in the West and for a curb on big business.

Hoover Selected by Martin For Executive Study Group

Speaker Martin yesterday announced appointment of former President Herbert Hoover as a member of a special commission to study the executive branch of the Government with a view to reorganizing it.

The others are James Rowe of Montana, formerly an assistant to the late President Roosevelt; Representative Clarence J. Brown, Ohio Republican, and Representative

Community Canning Center to Open Monday

The District Community Canning Center will open next Monday at 1640 Wisconsin ave. nw. Schedule is from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and from 3 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. on Thursday and Friday. Appointment for use of the center may be made by calling National 6000, Extension 2523.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Washington's Indifferent Government

CONGRESS IS in the home stretch, racing toward adjournment. The next two weeks will be full of sound and fury signifying chiefly the clamor and confusion that go along with this last-minute gallop.

Measures of vital importance are still to be approved. They involve, in certain instances, commitments already made in Europe. A host of bills with wide support will be brushed into the wastebasket in the rush.

In the midst of this flurry, members of House and Senate have had to take time out to consider the problem of that curious stepchild of the Federal Government, the District of Columbia. Here is the only community in the United States—a city of nearly a million people—which has nothing to say about its own destiny. Nominally at least, authority over the City of Washington is exercised by members of the Senate and House Committees for the District of Columbia.

They are stirred up just now by a very odd situation revealed by The Washington Post to exist in the Washington Police Department. This is the wholesale concealment of crimes occurring in the District. Washington's crime rate is high without the addition of the cases that never find their way into official records.

WHAT THIS amounts to is a two-way system of justice. Six hundred crimes went unrecorded in a single category—robbery. Soldiers, sailors, transients passing through town, and others with little influence or prestige, discovered that nothing happened when they reported their losses.

For one thing, this is a serious distortion of the official crime statistics that are reported to the FBI. But, far more important, it is a shocking example to the rest of the country of what can happen in the Nation's Capital, where buckpassing seems to be the rule.

It is hard to jar Washington's complacency. There is remarkably little concern over what in most cities would stir angry demands for reform. Maybe it's because Washington's voteless citizens have so long felt a sense of frustration and futility.

Complacency and indifference are, of course, fairly common political symptoms, even where the citizens have the right to vote on the kind of government they shall have. From Lincoln Steffens on down to the present, "corrupt and contented" is too often the appropriate slogan.

But other American cities have at least a chance to turn the rascals out now and then. When government is too expensive, or too corrupt, or too indifferent, an upheaval occurs. The ins are bound to be on their good behavior for a while at least.

In Washington no such upheaval can occur. The result is that a little clique tends to wield power year after year. And nothing happens until Congress gets excited about its overgrown ward.

THE SENATE District Committee has asked for a full investigation of the Washington police system. This was sponsored by Senators J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, the first-named a Democrat, the latter two Republicans. Ball and McGrath in particular have pressed for action.

These men all have many other demands on their time. They should not have to play foster-father to a city with which they have no direct political connection. The humblest of their constituents back home has a claim on them, while the citizen of the District is a mere petitioner.

The LaFollette-Monroney Reorganization Act brought some changes that have made Congress more efficient. Other steps are needed, and one of the first is to get rid of the burden of governing—or trying to govern in spare moments—the Nation's Capital. If it takes a constitutional amendment to give the District of Columbia home rule, then the machinery to that end should be put in motion at once.

What happens to Washington shouldn't happen to Goose Creek. For two years Mississippi's Senator Theodore G. Bilbo was chairman of the Senate District Committee and therefore unofficial Mayor of Washington. By the convenient ladder of seniority on a committee which most members tend to dodge, Bilbo rose to this eminence.

When the founding fathers decreed political neutrality for the Capital, they could not have foreseen the great city that has grown up here. It is high time this city grew up politically as well as physically.

House Approves Foundation To Coordinate Science Study

The House yesterday passed by voice vote a bill to create a 24-member National Science Foundation to supervise scientific activities for the Government and to promote work in the field of "pure science."

The Senate which has approved a similar measure, the National Science Foundation Act, has leaders have put it on the "must" list for this session.

The proposed foundation would be authorized to "farm out" research projects on a contract basis to private institutions. It would operate no laboratories of its own. The measure authorizes appropriations but mentions no specific amount.

A major branch of the foundation's work would lie in "division of national defense." It also would be subdivided into groups for medical research, physical sciences, biological sciences, and division of scientific personnel and education.

The latter division would be in charge of fellowships and scholarships for promising young scientists.

Latest in Boxcars To Be Exhibited At Union Station

"The Boxcar of Tomorrow"—Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co.'s answer to America's growing freight-car shortage—goes on display today on Track 1, upper level, at Union Station.

Pullman-Standard, a spokesman said, has orders for more than 10,000 of the new cars, is producing 200 of them daily, and is capable of delivering 50,000 a year. The cars, engineered for economical, rapid and continuous building, are offered to the railroads at a reduced cost.

House Group Approves VA Site Purchase

The House Veterans Committee approved yesterday a bill to authorize purchase of a 75-acre site at Clarksburg, W. Va., for a veterans hospital.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Rohrbough (R., W. Va.), was endorsed by the Veterans Administration. It provides that the city of Clarksburg would be allowed to use 45 acres of the tract for a public park until it is needed later for expansion of the hospital.

President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House callers:

10:30 a. m.—Samuel D. Jackson, former Senator from Indiana, with J. O. McClintock, president of Chicago Board of Trade.

10:45—Sir John Boyd Orr, director-general Food and Agricultural Organization of United Nations, with John Balfour, Charge d'Affaires of British Embassy.

11:00—President signs H. J. res. 170, authorizing erection of memorial to Andrew W. Mellon in District of Columbia.

11:45—Representative Dawson (D., Ill.) with group of officials of National Baptist Convention of America.

To Make World Flight

The first Washington-to-Washington round-the-world commercial air passenger will leave National Airport at 9 p. m. tomorrow aboard a Pan American World Airways Clipper. He is Lawrence W. Robert, jr., former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who is making the trip in the interests of Robert & Co., engineers and industrial architects. He expects to cover 25,000 miles in 10 weeks.

25 Railroads Seek to Raise Southern Fares

Twenty-five railroads operating in the South yesterday asked Interstate Commerce Commission authority to raise their basic one-way passenger fares in coaches by 13.63 per cent.

The change would make the coach fares on these lines conform with those of Eastern railroads, which raised the coach rate from 2.2 to 2.5 cents per mile June 1.

The Eastern carriers also increased Pullman passenger rates from 3.3 to 3.5 cents per mile June 1. But railroad sources said there has been disagreement among the Southern lines on the question of passenger fare increases, resulting in a situation which finds some Southern lines asking for Pullman increases only, others for increases in both Pullman and coaches and others for increases in coach fares only.

A proceeding for higher Pullman rates was instituted by 37 railroads in the South earlier this month. A hearing has been set in Atlanta, Ga., August 26. Of these lines, 23 also are asking coach fare increases, leaving 14 requesting Pullman increases only.

Two railroads—the Alabama, Tennessee & Northern and the Norfolk & Western—are asking for coach fare increases alone. The coach fare petition, in addition to way charges, also asks for proportionate increases in round-trip rates and establishment of a minimum one-way fare of 15 cents in place of the present 10 cents.

Lincoln Papers To Be Opened On July 26

Final preparations for the official opening of the Robert Todd Lincoln collection of the papers of Abraham Lincoln on July 26 were announced yesterday by officials of the Library of Congress.

Roy F. Basler, who is now editing a new edition of the collected writings of President Lincoln, will make the principal address at the formal presentation, at 4 p. m. in the main entrance hall of the Library.

Other speakers will include Dr. Luther Evans, Congressional Librarian, and Senator C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois, who will introduce descendants of Lincoln who are able to attend the ceremonies.

Library officials said yesterday that the event is attracting widespread public interest, as well as interest among Lincoln scholars. They declined to say, however, whether the documents to be seen publicly for the first time next week will reveal any outstanding new historical facts.

Under the will of the late Robert Todd Lincoln, donor of the collection, the papers must remain secret until the 21st anniversary of his death, which occurred on July 26, 1926.

Group to Get Charters

The Womens Auxiliary of the Irish War Veterans Post No. 17 will receive two charters from Post Commander George L. Cassidy at a presentation meeting at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Club Embassy, 1321 K st. nw.

It's not time that's LACKING

The New York Times

July 15, 1947

Senator Vandenberg came out of yesterday's bipartisan conference with President Truman with the announcement that it seemed "all but impossible" to adjust the immigration laws at this session to admit displaced persons. If this is true, the Stratton Bill and one of similar intent in the Senate will die. Something else will die, too. We have posed as a great humanitarian nation. In loans and gifts, made and projected, we act in a humanitarian manner, but our kindness, down to the present moment, seems to be for far-away peoples. We turn chilly at the prospect of admitting, by an adjustment of quotas, within a space of four years, the equivalent of one stranger for each 350 of our present population. The strangers would be of several faiths and various national origins. The overwhelming majority of them would be refugees from communism, which most of us don't like, either. What will die if these bills die is the refugees' faith in us.

Hurry Past the Homeless?

Congress is in a hurry to get home. The refugees, who have spent two or more years in camps, without homes, are probably in a hurry to get somewhere, too. The proposal to let some of them in by diverting unused quotas has been before the Eightieth Congress since Jan. 6, when President Truman included it in his message on the state of the nation. The Stratton Bill has been in the House since the beginning of April. There has been time enough.

The WIN of Congress And Our Self-Respect

The program of the Stratton Bill is a little thing to do for those who stood with us in the late war, and stand with us now. It is much more of a thing to do for ourselves, for these would be carefully selected immigrants; many of them bringing skills we need. Congress can find time for this measure, or for a compromise between this and the Senate bill, if it wants to. If it does want to, it can make many more than 400,000 friends for us; it can increase our own self-respect; it can answer the critics who call us hard-hearted hypocrites.

Apartment Zoning Denied For Tract at Hyattsville

Seven zoning petitions were granted, three were disapproved and one postponed yesterday at hearings held by the Prince Georges County Commissioners at Hyattsville, Md.

The commissioners disapproved the application of Daisy C. Landhardt Mahan, owner, for rezoning of the 10-acre Landhardt Estate on Hamilton st., Hyattsville, to permit building of apartments. A petition signed by 150 nearby property owners and more than a score of neighbors in person opposed the construction, saying it would depress values of their homes.

Also rejected were the petitions of Raymond Smith, agent, for rezoning to commercial a lot in Chapel Oaks, and Lemuel Williams, owner, asking industrial zoning for two lots in Deanwood Park.

Zoning petitions granted: Sadie Davis, owner, from residential to commercial of lots 353, 354 and 355, Cedar Heights; Aaron Bregman, owner, from residential to commercial of lot 12, Cedar Croft subdivision, Brentwood; W. C. and Elsie J. Zimmerman, Louis C. Dismar and Helen Dismar, owners, from residential to commercial of a tract on the east of Locust ave., Hyattsville; Mazie Stevens, agent, from residential to commercial of lots 5 to 9, block 2, Englewood; Samuel R. Edmonds, owner, from residential to commercial blocks D and E and part of block F, Edmonds subdivision, south of Bladensburg; Herbert D. Smith, residential to apartment use for property in Gilbert's subdivision of Takoma Park, between Lincoln ave. and Sligo Creek Parkway, Jackson and Cherry aves.; Mary Cecelia Hittner, from residential to commercial of lots 13 and 14 and part of 12 in the Hyattsville Building Co. Addition to Hyattsville. The latter was opposed by the mayor and council.

Application of Edith E. Whalen, owner, for rezoning from residential to apartment use of lots 7 and 8, block 14, Czarra's Addition to Brentwood, was postponed until August 20.

Tuition Fees Cut For Montgomery College Students

The Montgomery Junior College has reduced tuition fees one-third for student residents of Montgomery County. Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

An appropriation of $25,000 to the college by the county board of education has permitted a cut from $150 to $100 a semester, he said.

Special and part-time resident students also will benefit by the new scale, which will reduce their payments from $10 to $7 a semester hour.

Rates for non-resident students will remain at $175 a semester for full-time students and $125.00 an hour for special and part-time students.

Anti-Poll Tax Bill Approved by House Group

The House Administration Committee approved yesterday legislation to outlaw payment of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting in elections for Federal offices.

Backed by the Republican leadership, the bill tentatively is scheduled for a House vote early next week, although there are no indications that the Senate will consider it this year.

There seemed little doubt that the House would approve the bill in view of its leadership backing. However, such proposals have been filibustered to death in the Senate before and with congressional adjournment less than two weeks away the Senate may not even reach the debating stage.

Poll taxes are levied in Mississippi, Tennessee, South Carolina, Alabama, Virginia, Texas and Arkansas.

Iris Catcher Checks He. On Bounce

The financial affairs of Lady Iris Mountbatten and the temper of a Washington couturier were smoothed yesterday when three bouncing checks were made good.

The British beauty, cousin of Britain's King George VI, settled her bad check debt with Mrs. Wilhelmina Adams, the Georgetown couturier, of 1514 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Lady Iris' attorney, Thomas G. Carney, paid up the $185.05 and $5 assessed by her New York bank for its trouble in marking "insufficient funds" on them. In New York, Lady Iris admitted she was overdrawn, but said in England "such things are usually taken care of in banks."

Mrs. Adams, who said she had made repeated attempts to recover the money, was mollified with the payment. Her husband, Charles G. Adams, said she now has "no desire to prosecute."

Hershey Urges Steps to Guard Health of Youth

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey said yesterday that the large number of physical and mental rejects for service in the last war was "cause for apprehension." He urged corrective measures "at the earliest practical time."

Hershey, who directed the selective service system throughout the war, appeared before a House Interstate Commerce Subcommittee that is considering legislation to authorize Federal grants to States and Territories to improve health facilities for school children.

A bill by Representative Howell (R., Ill.) would authorize 12 million dollars outlay the first year and 18 million dollars the second. A companion bill, sponsored in the Senate by Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) would provide 10 million dollars the first year and 15 million dollars the second.

Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) in a letter to the subcommittee headed by Representative Dooliver (R., Iowa) said the proposed program "seemed to some of us in the Senate a good approach to the problem of the unsatisfactory condition of our youth's health." He urged favorable action.

Consumers Group to Launch Meatless Week in Price Protest

Friction over the price of meat developed yesterday as the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection announced a "Don't Buy Meat Week" campaign, to start tomorrow.

The committee declares that the meat price is too high, and must come down even if it takes a congressional investigation to bring it down.

Local meat retailers, on the other hand, declare that since meat prices started to skyrocket about a month ago, they have been absorbing about 15 per cent of the price increase. They said they can't "hold out much longer" on that basis.

The rise in meat prices now is being attributed in some quarters to the export of feed corn and meat to Europe.

However, members of the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection declare that during the last three months, meat production has hit an all-time high, distribution throughout the country is back to normal, and the amount of meat going into export is less than the quota.

The committee blames the boosted price of meat on the packers who, they predict, may be "getting set for a 'killing' next fall when there may possibly be a shortage of meat due to the recent floods and their effect on the corn crop."

The committee, in a formal statement issued yesterday, said it was asking consumers here and elsewhere to buy no meat during the week of July 18 to July 25 "as an expression of their indignation over the price of meat today."

Volunteers will start tomorrow in approximately 40 shopping centers in the Greater Washington area to distribute leaflets asking consumers not to buy meat and to secure signatures for a petition requesting an investigation by Congress.

Social Security Rate Continued by Senate

Legislation freezing the Social Security tax for the next two years at the present rate of 1 per cent each on employees and employers was passed by the Senate yesterday in amended form and sent back to the House.

Without the legislation, the tax rate would rise automatically next January 1 to 2½ per cent on each.

The House had voted to allow the rate to go up to 1½ per cent for the years 1950 through 1956, and to 2 per cent thereafter. The Senate Finance Committee recommended, however, that Congress postpone permanent changes in Social Security laws pending a complete study of rates, costs and coverage.

Guests Escape Blaze In Port Arthur Hotel

Port Arthur, Tex., July 16 (AP).—A two-hour hotel fire raged at the 10-story Goodhue Hotel early today, gutting part of the sixth floor and causing an estimated $10,000 damage.

Mrs. Foster Bryan of Charleston, W. Va., suffered a burned scalp and singed hair. No other injuries were reported.

The 150-room brick hotel, built in 1929, was packed to capacity at the time. All guests were evacuated.

Coal Price Rise Here Averages $1.63 a Ton

Most dealers here have raised retail prices of soft coal an average of about $1.63 a ton.

The bituminous retail price boost results from higher prices at the mines, caused by wage hikes granted miners, dealers said.

While hard coal prices have not yet changed, an anthracite price hike of about $1, or maybe a little more, is anticipated by August 1, according to Lewis R. Potts, chairman of the Coal Division of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association.

Typical of the pattern of changes are the following quotations received from one large dealer on grades of Pocahontas soft coal: Stoker coal, from $10.50 to $12.10; stove coal, $12.67 to $14.35; egg coal, $12.84 to $14.45, and nut coal, $11.73 to $13.35.

Since Monday the press services have reported price rises of mining companies, in Springfield, Birmingham, Youngstown, Toledo and Pittsburgh, ranging from $1 to $2 a ton.

These increases came despite the hold-the-line plea of President Truman. Asserting that the United Mine Workers increase of $1.20 a day is the same raise granted by other industries, the President has warned that a rise in coal prices would add fuel to the present fire of inflationary trends.

Pullman-Standard's Newest Box Car

At the invitation of the Office of Defense Transportation, Pullman-Standard has brought to the Union Station at Washington its latest model box car—the P-S-1. This car was unveiled at the recent convention of the Railway Supply Manufacturers' Association in Atlantic City.

P-S-1 is one more example of the superiority of the American system of competitive free enterprise. It is the result of Pullman-Standard's constant striving to out-do competition; to create a better product at less cost, and to pass the savings along to its customers.

Competition

NOW IN PRODUCTION

P-S-1 is far past the blueprint stage; more than 10,000 are on production schedules for the following railroads, and deliveries are already under way:

Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe
Boston & Maine
Chesapeake & Ohio
Chicago Great Western Kansas City Southern Lehigh Valley
Maine Central
New York Central
New York, New Haven & Hartford
Nickel Plate
Seaboard Railway
Southern Railway

Pullman-Standard's position with respect to competition was outlined recently by Mr. Champ Carry, President of the Company, in the following message to employees:

"The freight car business, by tradition and by practice, is fiercely competitive. To secure orders for new cars, our company must compete not only with other commercial car builders but, in many cases, with the railroad's own shops.

"Under these circumstances, our company can maintain its position as a leading car builder only by offering our railroad customers greater value for their money. This is the goal at which all of our efforts have been directed. All of us have an important stake in the attainment of this objective, which is to hold our lead, and to increase it if possible, in the competitive race to supply the railroads with new modern equipment.

"The development of the new P-S-1 car at this particular time is good news to each employee; building more cars means steadier jobs. It is good news to each plant community, to our railroad customers and, yes, to our nation.

"The P-S-1 is by no means the final answer to our problem of meeting competition. It is merely a forward step in our company's continuing program of research and development aimed at our goal of building better cars, and more of them, at the lowest possible price."

Hungarians Look to U. S., Exile Says

Hungary's hope for freedom should be encouraged by the United States.

Aladar Szegedy-Maszak, former Hungarian minister to the United States, declared yesterday that his countrymen today under Russian rule are surviving only by compliance to "a way of horror."

He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Silver Spring (Md.) Rotary Club at Indian Spring Country Club in his first public address since his resignation in protest of Soviet seizure of Hungary.

Szegedy-Maszak described Hungary today as a "police state," where people are moved by fear of the Red army when they might be moved by hope from outside.

Russians Exploit Country
"This hope should be encouraged by the United States," he declared. The former diplomat, now under protection of the State Department here, described Russia's economic policy in Hungary as "exploitation." Under present trade agreements, he said, Russia buys raw materials from Hungary at low prices and sells back to Hungary the finished goods at extremely high prices.

"Our people expected a lot from Russia and just couldn't believe things would be as bad as they were when under German rule," he declared. "The Red army destroyed those hopes."

Hungary, he said, is not an exception, since what is happening there has been happening the past 10 years to all small countries in eastern Europe.

Look to United States
"Our people look to the United States for liberation," he declared. "Their freedom by the Russians was not a liberation but a conquest."

Szegedy-Maszak is credited with assisting the Allies during World War II, moving in high Nazi circles and dining with Hitler to learn state secrets. He was finally caught by the Gestapo, jailed in Budapest and interned for 13 months at Dachau concentration camp before he was liberated by the Allies.

H. Brooks Perring, newly installed president of the Silver Spring Rotary Club, presided at the meeting.

Ferenc Nagy to Speak
Ferenc Nagy, former Prime Minister of the United States, will speak tomorrow at the Junior Board of Commerce's regular luncheon at the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont ave. nw., at 12:30 p. m.

R. G. Lockiel to Handle Airlines Purse Strings
Raymond G. Lockiel, vice president and treasurer of Capital Airlines, has been elected vice president and comptroller and will have complete supervision of all the corporation's expenditures.

This was announced yesterday by C. Bedell Monro, airline president, after a regular meeting of the board of directors. Elected to the board of directors and to the executive committee was J. C. Herbert Bryant of Alexandria and to the board's executive committee, Dewey F. Gruenagen of Minneapolis. Robert P. Wright, now assistant treasurer, was appointed acting treasurer.

Truman Signs Measure For Mellon Memorial

President Truman yesterday signed a bill to permit the erection of an Andrew W. Mellon memorial fountain near the National Gallery of Art.

Choice of the exact site is to be made by the Fine Arts and the National Capital Park and Planning Commissions.

N. Y. Museum Post Goes To Steichen

Capt. Edward Steichen, USNR (ret.), dean of American photographers, who has devoted more than half a century to lens and shutter, has assumed directorship of the photographic department of New York's Museum of Modern Art.

In a press statement, he forecast a vastly expanded museum program in photography, upon construction of a new wing, funds for which are now being sought.

In World War II, Steichen commanded all Navy photography, organized and directed the Navy Photographic Institute. He also directed the special unit that shot film sequences for the movie "The Fighting Lady."

Head of New Cuban Party Shot on Street

Havana, Cuba, July 16 (AP).—Orlando Castro, 23, student leader of the newly organized Cuban People's Party, was shot and seriously wounded today by three men in a passing automobile.

Castro, who was shot twice while talking to a friend on a street corner of downtown Havana, was understood to have recognized one of his attackers. Police refused any information on the case, however.

What is he doing for you?

BAKING BREAD?

TESTING STEEL?

MELTING DOWN GOLD?

THE ANSWER IS "testing steel"—he is a research man and he is studying ways to improve the steel you use.

You own a lot of steel. Your automobile is almost all steel. Steel runs your watch. The springs of your favorite easy chair are steel.

Your steel is good steel. In the hundreds of steel mill laboratories trained, experienced scientists are applying research all the time to make your steel even better.

Bethesda Taxi Companies Ask Hearing to Protest New Rates

Four Bethesda, Md., taxicab companies, who have bitterly protested the new Montgomery County tax ordinance, yesterday asked for a hearing on the issue before the county commissioners.

James H. Pugh, former State's Attorney, retained by the four cab firms, said he was writing the commissioners asking for the hearing.

Previously, Pugh had stated he would confer with Albert E. Conrad, county public utilities agent who drafted the controversial ordinance, but yesterday he said he was going to "throw the whole thing into the lap of the commissioners."

"If the commissioners fail to amend the ordinance, we will take it into court," he said.

Pugh said the taxicab firms were principally opposing the prescribed 25-cent fare in the Bethesda business district "because 95 per cent of the companies' business is in

Broome Details Plans for New Montgomery Schools

A breakdown of the proposed three-million-dollar bond issue for school improvement in Montgomery County was released yesterday by Dr. Edwin W. Broome, school superintendent.

Included in the figure, he said, is a $190,000 item for purchase of new school sites. These are: Massachusetts ave. extended, $100,000 for a new Western Junior High School; one adjacent to Bradley Elementary for a junior high school, $60,000; and a site at Flower Avenue Elementary, $30,000.

Proposed construction on existing buildings includes: Rockville Elementary, $18,000; Colesville, $38,000; Alta Vista, $30,000; Westbrook, $225,000; Bradley, $50,000; Sherwood, $60,000; Potomac, $80,000; Damascus High, $400,000; and Kensington Elementary, $180,000.

Also Glenmont, $60,000; North Four Corners, $40,000; Flower Avenue, $180,000; Montgomery Blair, $100,000; Montgomery Hills, $140,000; Takoma Junior, $180,000; Bethesda-Chevy Chase, $100,000;

Water Pollution Fund Passed by Senate

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing 100 million dollars a year in Federal loans to states to combat water pollution.

The surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service and the Federal Security Agency would work out with the states solutions of pollution problems.

Dr. Broome said the figures are only work estimates, and completion of a production schedule will produce minor changes.

Montgomery To Buy Gas At Wholesale

An annual saving of $20,000 through purchase of oil and gasoline in wholesale lots for county-owned vehicles was predicted yesterday by Montgomery County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr.

Gas and oil pumps have already been installed in Bethesda and Silver Spring, McNayr said, and two will be installed in Rockville and two in Gaithersburg soon.

Previously, the supervisor said, gas and oil have been bought at retail for the county's 150-odd vehicles, including school buses.

Another economy measure will involve a $20,000 equipment depot in Washington Grove where repair work on county vehicles will be done by the county, he said.

McNayr said the equipment depot is now in the final plans stage. Construction bids will be advertised in about 10 days. He predicted the depot would pay for itself in four years.

Still another economy measure will be the raising of produce and livestock on the ground of the County Home, the supervisor disclosed. He said the new policy will substantially reduce food bills for the County Home and the Rockville jail.

Girder Cuts Off Man's Leg; Friend Saves Him

Detroit, July 16 (AP).—A quick-thinking workman came to the aid of a comrade whose leg was cut off by a flying girder today as they toiled 50 feet about Detroit's financial district.

Frank Ryan, 48, father of two children, lost his leg when a girder on a building they were razing pinned him against a wall.

As he wavered in agony on the edge of a platform, Alfred Finck, working with him, reached his side and held him with one hand. With the other Finck ripped off his own shirt and applied a makeshift tourniquet. Firemen eventually rescued the maimed man.

Mrs. Warburg Divorces New York Financier

Reno, July 16 (AP).—Mrs. Phyllis B. Warburg, the former Phyllis Baldwin Browne, today divorced James Paul Warburg of New York City, prominent financier and member of the Warburg banking family.

She charged mental cruelty. A sealed agreement settled property matters. The couple married April 13, 1935, in New York City.

Slackens as MINDING YOUR BUSINESS

Prices Recede
New York, July 16 (P)—Individual stocks absorbed further selling today with a fair amount of success, although many market leaders continued to rest in the minus ranks.

Deals were quiet and easier tendencies prevailed from the start. Motors revived as the final hour approached and activity picked up a bit. Quotations in other departments stiffened and extreme declines running to a point or more were reduced in most cases or converted into modest advances.

Although recovery failed to hold in the majority of instances, the close was only slightly uneven.

Transfers exceeded the million share mark for the eleventh straight session, amounting to 1,070,000 shares, against 1,180,000 Tuesday.

Short covering and timid investment demand accounted for much of the belated improvement. Numerous customers, however, continued to trim accounts on the idea that more of a technical correction was in the cards. Some thought was given to the possibility that the eight-week sharp upswing may have discounted a certain amount of inflation and that recently soaring commodities could mean that a boom-bust cycle was under way. Tax doubts and the puzzling European situation served as restraints. Dividends and earnings persisted as bidding arguments.

Recording highs for 1947 were Chrysler, up 1 1/2 at 61 1/2; Lion Oil 2 1/2 at 55; Bendix Home Appliances 1 1/2 at 23 1/2 and Standard Oil of Ohio 1 1/2 at 29 1/2.

Allied Chemical added 3/4 at 189; West Indies Sugar 1 1/2 at 27 1/2 and duPont 1 1/2 at 19 1/2. Lesser gainers included U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, International Harvester, Tractor, International Telephone, Columbia Gas, Cerro Pasco, Air Reduction, General Electric, United Air Lines, Great Northern Railway and Northern Pacific.

Losers of 1 to 2 points were Douglas Aircraft at 54, Pacific Western Oil at 34, Mission Corp. at 34, J. C. Penney at 45 1/2, International Harvester at 37 1/2, Youngstown Sheet & Tube at 37 1/2, Republic Steel at 37 1/2, Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich.

Bonds were uneven.

The logical, direct explanation seems to be both realistic and reasonable. We're in a sellers' market for steel and coal. Price is no object. Steel users undoubtedly remitted Fairless that he had an obligation to supply steel. The corporation yielded to that obligation. It takes great courage and self-confidence to risk stopping the Nation's production, profits and prosperity.

Nobody wanted a coal strike—any more than anybody wanted the last war. Hitler would have preferred Poland without a fight. A strike might have cost millions of jobs. Undoubtedly, we would have raised eyebrows in Europe. So, naturally, everyone—from President Truman down—didn't want a strike. And if Fairless and Lewis jointly took the government off the spot, so much the better—the better.

Lewis didn't want a strike either. He has led his miners a merry round. In the last eleven years, miners have walked out 10 times on a national scale—not only for higher wages and better working conditions, but also over the organization of foremen, over the Centralia disaster, over the Taft-Hartley law. The strike against the Government last year cost the United Mine Workers Union $735,000 in fines and bondage. There was also the $10,000 personal fine imposed on Lewis.

Miners, contrary to popular belief, don't always obey Lewis' orders. In the strike over the foremen issue, not all went out. Lewis beat a quick retreat. Lewis, like any labor leader, is strong only so long as his workers accept his judgment. Miners have family responsibilities. Sometimes they ask the reason why. So Lewis, whenever he calls a strike, is subject to pressure, too.

Fairless would hear from General Motors and American Locomotive and International Harvester: "when will we get steel?" May be Wall Street bankers and investment brokers would telephone: "You're wrecking the market." But, similarly, Lewis would hear from local union bosses, and construction workers who are laid off, or the teamsters that find their trucking operations curtailed. A strike is a two-way war of nerves.

After a few days of strike, the issues would become clear. Perhaps the Government would have applied pressure—on one side or the other. Perhaps with the heat on, Lewis would have seen his responsibilities in a larger sense—might have agreed to peace to save the Marshall plan, might have accepted the 15-cent-an-hour pattern. He has buckled before.

Then there's the theory that U. S. Steel and other employers actually wanted to make Lewis look good because they'd rather do business with him and the AFL than with the CIO. Robert R. Watson, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, once said as much. The CIO has ideological tendencies, including the desire to 'help' management manage. Didn't Walter Reuther, of the United Auto Workers, want to be a General Motors boss? Of course, Lewis has no such aspirations. He simply is the U. S. coal dictator.

AT CHARLES TOWN
Dear Folks:
Recently I wrote about one of the press box boys remarking on a bad day, "There must be an easier way to make a soft living." Today he changed the statement to, "There must be an easier way to make a soft living." John Foster of Brunswick, Md., shipped Vete, Perry Command and Lucy S. to Monmouth Park. The conditions books for Bel Air are out and the races there have been geared for the many Delaware Park horses already on the grounds. That track promises more class than ever if the races lined up by Secretary Ty Shea materialize. Wilson Ford hopes to get his star horse, Lone Herbie, off the veterinarian's list before the "Go Home Happy" purse on closing day—next Tuesday. Hagerstown has 700 applications for 500 stalls for the meeting that follows Bel Air. Harry Triggs, the daily double king, will take over the riding engagements for Jockey Mike Sarno at Bel Air. G. W. Fair of Washington, has sold Golden Babe to O. A. Edgeworth. The horse, crazy people, wasn't so crazy today and almost got home at a pot full. See you on the rail. BILL.

Palumbo On Winner, Beats Baird

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 16.—In a pin and tuck battle right down to the wire, G. A. Lawson's Fall Guy was a head winner over the Stevens Stable's Asaider here today.

The struggle involving the two leading riders of the meeting—Sammy Palumbo on Fall Guy and Jimmy Baird on Asaider—came in the Casino Royal Purse, featuring the midweek program. In third position and three lengths behind the fight for first money came Robert B. Young's Rise to Follow in the field of eight.

Close observers, including Trainer J. Stevens, believed Fall Guy came over on Asaider in the early stretch run, but Jockey Baird admitted that such was not the case and there was no foul claim. Coupled with R. L. Hall's Patuxent Belle as the Trainer B. P. Young, Fall Guy paid a $3.60 mutuel and was clocked in 1:16 1/5 for the six furlongs, over a fast track and under sunny skies.

Fall Guy went to the front at the first furlong of the starting bell to be followed into the clubhouse turn by Rise to Follow and Milagro. Asaider was being steered at this point.

Along the backstretch, Fall Guy opened a three length advantage and backers of the 3-year-old believed Palumbo might be rushing him too much. However, it was well he had that kind of a lead approaching the stretch for Asaider came boldly to the inside.

Fall Guy and Asaider then hooked up with the latter between Fall Guy and the inside rail. In the final drive, Palumbo went to the whip. Baird was unable to do likewise due to lack of riding space.

Palumbo, who put up one of his sour rides on the Sharrilla Stable's Martha Grier in the fifth race, was a bundle of energy in the seventh race as well as the feature.

He took J. Tucker's Time Play to the front at the break and kept the 11-year-old going long enough to stave off a closing rush of Mrs. W. Hayhurst's Casagrin. Stanley Greene, Jr.'s Gambling Andy did only flashes of running to finish third in this test of a mile and a sixteenth.

Time Play was a $10.20 shot and was clocked at 1:48 1/5 for the route.

Successful daily double players collected a $198 mutual on victories of M. D. Weaver's Lawrinson, ridden by Jockey Eddie Smith and E. Curry's Buck's Danne handled by Jockey Eddie Churchill in the second event.

Mann-Tandberg Match Sought
New Haven, July 16 (AP)—Matchmaker George Sheppard of the New Haven Arena said today that he had called an offer of $15,000 to Ole Tandberg, Swedish heavyweight, to meet Nathan Mann of New Haven in an open air match here this summer.

Sheppard said that Mann who emerged from retirement two years ago to compile a fairly impressive string of victories has already agreed to terms, Mann, knocked out by Champion Joe Louis in three rounds several years ago, recently defeated Charlie Weinberg, conqueror of Tami Maurelio.

Sheppard said that he believed the local heavyweight would provide an excellent test of the abilities of the recent victor over Joe Bakke.

D. C. May Get $900,000 in U. S. Health Funds

District Health Department funds may be augmented by nearly $900,000 from Federal Government sources during the 1948 fiscal year, health officials revealed yesterday. Federal contributions totaling $877,071 are "hoped for" in addition to the $7,857,000 health funds in the District 1948 appropriations bill now being considered in the Senate, Health Officer George C. Ruhland revealed.

The Federal funds would come from the following sources:

1. United States Public Health Service—$344,015. This would include $118,098 for Gallinger Hospital's rapid treatment center; $78,000 for venereal disease; $67,109 for tuberculosis; $50,668 for general health activities; $12,990 for cancer; $11,356 for mental health; and $5794 for industrial hygiene.
2. Children's Bureau of the Labor Department—$234,706. Of this amount, $147,748 would go to child health programs, principally for crippled children, and $86,958 for maternal and child welfare.
3. Federal Hospital Construction Fund—$298,350. This would be the District's portion of a 75 million-dollar fund to be doled out to the States and the District under the direction of USPHS. The District would have to provide $2 for every Federal dollar granted for building hospitals.

Non-profit hospitals can qualify for Federal construction funds, Dr. Ruhland explained, if the building plans have the approval of agencies representing the USPHS surgeon general.

The District Health Department can make such recommendations, he said. Dr. Ruhland said his special hospital inventory committee is investigating all local non-Federal hospitals. This inventory survey will enable him to recommend to USPHS "what the needs are and what should be done" in the way of hospital construction here.

School Board Nominations Set for August

Nearly 75 delegates representing Arlington school districts and civic organizations will hold a convention early next month to pick nominees for the first elected school board in county history.

According to Dr. Oscar LeBeau, co-chairman of a steering group planning the convention, Virginia law has no provision for non-partisan election of school board members, "so we set up our own convention to do the job."

Nominating speeches will be heard at the initial meeting, to be held at 8 p. m. August 8, probably in the Lyon Park Community Center, LeBeau said. A second meeting is tentatively scheduled for August 11 to elect nominees.

Direct election of Arlington School Board members was demanded by an overwhelming vote last May 27 in county referendum. Incumbent board members were selected by a school electoral trustee board.

LeBeau said he expected 33 convention delegates from Arlington school districts, about 31 from the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, the Organized Women, Veterans, the Arlington Civic Federation, and the League of Women Voters, with more representing the Arlington Better Government League.

His co-chairman is Edmund Campbell, former County Board chairman. Other steering committee officers are: M. Riggs McCormick, Dr. C. E. Tutill, Mrs. Martha Miller, Mrs. Virginia Thatcher and Julian Simpson.

Champion Toreador Gored But Gets Bull

Madrid, July 16 (U.P.)—Manolete, Spain's most famous bullfighter, was injured seriously today when he was gored by a bull. Although bleeding profusely from a deep gash on the left leg, Manolete—Manuel Rodriguez—went on fighting until he killed the bull.

A bulletin said the bull's horn had penetrated three inches into Manolete's left thigh, destroying a muscle.

Senate Passes Buying On Credit Controls

Legislation continuing consumer credit controls until December 31, with easier terms on some purchases, was passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House. The time limit on credit, now 15 months, would be increased to 24 months, and no down payment of more than 20 per cent could be required. Minimum down payments of 33 1/3 per cent now are required for some items such as automobiles, household equipment and radios.

Senate Would Increase VA Employees by 4000

VA: The Senate has voted to give Veterans' Administration funds to hire upward of 4000 more employees than it now has. It added about 14 million dollars to its administrative fund.

About 14,000 jobs are at stake in the Senate-House conference on the agency's budget. This is the picture: the House voted to knock out about 10,000 VA jobs. The Senate first approved funds to continue all of these jobs. In addition, it added the 14 million dollars which would provide the 4000 additional positions. The new jobs would be in the hospital and medical department.

WAR: However, the Senate knocked out that provision which would have provided 25,000 additional civilian jobs for this department by replacing military people in civilian jobs. It had been proposed up to that number of additional civilians be hired if the Army were not able to recruit its full strength of 1,070,000 officers and men.

ATOMIC ENERGY: The salaries of at least 200 high-level administrative people in this agency will be cut on or before November 1. The Senate agreed to the House rider which would bring administrative salaries in this agency in line with the Civil Service Classification Act.

In debating the provision, Senators agreed that it was not to apply to plant managers and other AEC officials who are technicians and scientists. As Senator Russell of Georgia explained, the rider is intended to prohibit the AEC from raising salaries of clerks, stenographers and file clerks above the Civil Service rates.

LIBRARY: Now that its appropriation bill has been finally approved by Congress, at least 150 jobs must be wiped out. The Library must cut its motion picture project, and make a 47 per cent cut in its State law index. The Legislative Reference Service would be cut only 5 per cent.

CIVIL SERVICE has given the Office of Selective Service Records authority to hire about 100 employees outside the merit system. COMMERCE has told its employees that there is no law to prohibit them from engaging in an outside business after hours, provided it doesn't interfere with their work or reflect discredit on the department.

WAR will be able to make time studies of the work of its arsenal employees for the first time in 30 years when its budget is written into law. The Congress has knocked out the long-standing ban against it.

CAPITOL HILL: Chairman Langer of the Senate Civil Service Committee, says he has the word of Senate GOP leaders that the Langer-Chavez retirement bill will be passed with only minor amendments. Langer has his doubts if there's time enough to pass the bill before Congress adjourns to leave the Rees Federal work stoppage.

JOBS: Federal Communications is in need of CAF-3 stenographers. Interested, apply in Room 2210 of Temporary I Building at 17th st. and Independence ave.

RETIREMENT: A subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday again failed to agree on the House-approved Foran bill. The measure would permit a laid-off employee who is at least 55 to retire on a reduced pension if he had at least 25 years of service.

WAR has a request in for funds to move back here several of its Chemical Warfare units. The department estimates that 433 of its employees will be required to make its own loyalty checks of its remaining civilians. It's in the process of decentralizing its recruitment records, a project that will wipe out the jobs of 800 employees and save about two million dollars a year.

CAPITOL HILL: It's the popular thing to do for a Congressman to criticize the management of Federal agencies. But one of those rare things happened the other day—a Congressman actually unloosed a verbal blast at Congress and its administration. The member was Representative Cannon (D., Mo.), and this is part of what he had to say.

The legislative appropriation bill provides the largest number of House and Senate employees who have the highest salaries in congressional history. He said the bill was a repudiation of the economy promises, and that it would lead to waste, duplication and maladministration.

ACT: During debate on the Federal Trade budget, Senator Reed (R., Kans.) said the agency is about to dry up and blow away. He added that it had a "poor efficiency record." The Senator got approval of an amendment to increase its budget $200,000. How would he lead the fight against a substitute by Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) that would have made the increase one million dollars.

PEOPLE: Louise E. Hill has been held after 24 years in the Navy Department here. Edward Steiner, formerly of Civilian Production, has opened his own law office here. Any day now the President will nominate late Representative Evan Howell (R., Ill.) to be a member of the Court of Claims.

State Views Sought by Police in Plank Case

Conference Slated Today on Whether Evidence Warrants Charge of Murder

Fairfax County police will confer with Commonwealth Attorney Hugh Marsh today to see if the circumstantial evidence they have against Alvah B. Martin, 29-year-old suspect in the Norman Le Ray Plank slaying is sufficient to warrant a murder charge.

Continued questioning of Martin for more than 16 hours only produced a welter of confusing statements which shed no light on the murder, Chief of Police Carl McIntosh said.

Evidence obtained at the scene of the murder in the home of Plank's sister, Mrs. Nellie Burrer, 4108 Forest la., Chesterbrook Woods, Fairfax, Va., was submitted to the FBI yesterday to determine whether Martin is lying.

"This evidence has no actual bearing on murder," Chief of Detectives Henry Magarity said, "but we will be able to find out once and for all whether Martin is confused in his statements to us or whether he is trying to mislead us."

Magarity and Detective Sgt. James Mahoney spent considerable time in Washington trying to verify some of the statements that Martin made as to his whereabouts, but in no instance could the information be verified.

Martin was arrested in Kingstown, N. Y., five days after the murder, driving a car which he admitted taking from Plank.

McIntosh said the suspect was not questioned yesterday and expressed the belief that Martin would never confess his full part in the events leading up to the shooting. He said that after the conference with Marsh, the Commonwealth Attorney would have an opportunity to question the suspect.

Mental Institute Attendant Held On Rape Charge

Catoonsville, Md., July 16 (AP)—An attendant at a mental institution was held in a secret jail here on a rape charge today as police investigated an attack on an 11-year-old girl in a woods near this Baltimore suburb last night.

Some 200 men, mostly from the Baltimore County police said a large crowd gathered around the Catoonsville police station after the attack spread, causing him to order the prisoner transferred to another jail.

He identified the accused as Roy Lee Lethco, 39, a native of Raleigh, N. C., and an attendant at the State's Spring Grove Mental Hospital.

The girl, described as a member of "an old, well-known Maryland family," was reported "fair" today after an emergency operation.

The accused was taken into custody after a posse of more than 25 county and military policemen scoured the woods for three hours.

1000 Employees Are Laid Off By 11 Md. Firms

Annapolis, Md., July 16 (AP)—Russell S. Davis, chairman of the department of employment security, reported today 11 Maryland firms had laid off approximately 1000 workers temporarily.

Some were laid off because of lack of work and others because of vacation periods, Davis explained, as he reported a total disbursement of $323,939 in compensation the week ending July 12.

During this period, county offices paid out 4972 checks totaling $30,364 and Baltimore offices 12,500 checks totaling $224,728. Out-of-State claimants received 911 checks totaling $18,847 during the week. The State reserve fund at the end of the week was $117,057,797.

Child Injured In Traffic Mishap

CHARLES C. LAW, Three-year-old Takoma Park boy darted in front of a parked bus yesterday and was struck by a motorcycle operated by Charles Cass, 20, of 321 Plymouth ave., Silver Spring. The boy was admitted to Washington Sanitarium with a fractured leg and face cuts.

Motorcycle Hits Boy, 3, Breaks Leg

Takoma Park Child Struck Just After Alighting From Bus

A 3-year-old Takoma Park Md. boy narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when he was struck by a motorcycle. He received a broken leg and minor cuts.

Charles Carson Law, whose father, Charles J. Law, is a student at the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, had just alighted from a bus at Flower and Maple aves. with his grandmother, Mrs. Clara Law.

Police said the child darted from in front of the bus and was struck by a motorcycle operated by Charles Cass, 20, of 321 Plymouth ave., Silver Spring.

He was admitted to Washington Sanitarium. The boy's mother is a teacher at the Parkside School recreation center.

Claim for Damage To Minks by Plane Passed by House

By The Associated Press
A mama mink, it seems, can't tell friendly aircraft from the other kind and has, besides, some mighty odd ideas about building an air raid shelter.

This may cost the Government $2079 in damages payable to A. J. Sproufske of Roy, Wash.

Sproufske owned a mink farm a mile from Fort Lewis, Wash., where Army airplanes did a lot of low level flying during maneuvers in 1939.

As each wave of aircraft appeared, Sproufske said, the mink mothers dashed over and covered their young with a layer of straw. When they finally ran out of straw, they threw themselves on top of the pile.

Sproufske said he had 62 litters totaling 279 kits when all this started. When the airplanes finished roaring around his premises, all but 48 had smothered.

The House approved his damage claim yesterday and sent it along to the Senate.

School Loan Approved In Anne Arundel

Annapolis, Md., July 16 (AP)—The Anne Arundel County commissioners have approved a loan of one million dollars of $2,500,000 authorized by the State Legislature for building schools in the county.

With the loan approved, the board of education was pressing forward its first project—Glen Burnie Junior High School—with a survey being made for location and elevation.

Referendum On Charter Is Opposed

Auchincloss Favors Advice on D. C. Rule but Would Give Congress 'Say'

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) said yesterday that Congress and not the citizens of the District must have the final word on what kind of home rule charter the city may get.

Auchincloss, chairman of the House District Subcommittee on Reorganization and Home Rule, said he wants the local residents to express their views to Congress while it is preparing a charter. He said an informal referendum on whatever charter Congress drafts would be very helpful to the members.

But he made clear he did not believe the citizens should have the final power to say by a referendum whether a home rule charter for the District, drafted by Congress, should be accepted or rejected.

"Congress has got to make the final decision," said Auchincloss. Raised in Testimony

The question of a citizens referendum was raised during testimony by Laurence F. Schmeckebier, an author of the 1929 Brookings study of the District government.

Schmeckebier agreed that Congress could do as it pleases without regard to the wishes of local citizens, but he suggested having Congress submit whatever charter it may write as a referendum. He said this would be like the practice in States where the Legislature drafts the charter for a city, then submits it for a vote of the city's residents.

He said congressional hearings on a proposed charter would not be a substitute for a referendum. He explained the citizens who could be heard that way would be "too small a cross section."

Grant Backs Referendum
Another witness, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, cited Washington's informal suffrage referendum last November.

Grant, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, emphasized he was testifying as a private citizen.

He said the referendum showed a "definite majority of the citizens want a vote in national elections but the feeling for local self government, I think, is definitely lukewarm."

He urged a referendum on any home rule charter Congress prepares.

Auchincloss said he agreed the people should know what form of government is proposed.

General Grant proposed revamping the District government along these lines:
A Governor appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, for a four-year term, and an annual $25,000 salary.

A Commissioner of Public Works, like the city's present Engineer-Commissioner.

A Commissioner of Education and Public Welfare, elected for a 6-year term by the District residents.

A comptroller, appointed by the Governor subject to confirmation by a city council, in charge of all fiscal work.

An 11-member city council, whose members would include the Governor, the other two Commissioners, the superintendent of National Capital Parks, and six members at large elected by the people.

The subcommittee also heard Irwin W. Silverman, chief counsel for the Interior, Department's division of territories and island possessions, urge that the District should be given at least the same amount of home rule the Territories have.

Sumter Now U. S. Shrine

Two Meet Death in Virginia Plane Crash

HIT TELEPHONE POLE—Two men were burned to death when this single-engine plane crashed into a telephone pole at Panorama, just off the Skyline Drive in Virginia Tuesday. Police said the plane, en route to Clarksburg, W. Va., carried a cargo of chickens. They identified the dead as Francis and Arthur H. Watrous of Meriden, Conn., who had been operating an air freight service.

Grant Offers Balance Sheet Of Governmental Setup of D.C.

How good is the District Government?
A balance sheet on that question was presented yesterday by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, III to the House District subcommittee on reorganization and home rule. Grant emphasized he was speaking as a private citizen rather than as chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Here is the list:

- | Honest Administration And Lack of Graft Among Advantages | Liabilities Include Voteless Citizenry, Divided Authority |
|---|--|
| Advantages of the present District government:
1. Adequate, probably too complete Federal control.
2. Honesty of administration and lack of graft.
3. Relatively high efficiency in meeting the needs of the community, for the moment frustrated by the accumulated backlog of capital expenditure needs and the inadequacy of prospective municipal income to finance them.
4. Seventy years of public works, generally well designed and economically carried out, free from political manipulation and graft—a record unique among American cities.
5. No burden of municipal debt—the present chief fixed expense and bugbear of so many cities. | Disadvantages
1. Taxation without representation and the fact that the people of the District are governed, benevolently to be sure, by an executive and a Legislature without a vote in the selection of the former or a representative in the latter. It is certainly an anomaly that this should be so in the Capital of the outstanding government of the world representing democracy. Nevertheless, results have been generally good.
2. A burden of work on Congress to handle local problems which it should not have to bear, and which only too frequently results, because of the calls of national legislation on the time of members, in delays inconsistent with the District's best interests.
3. Impossibility of fixing personal responsibility for things that go wrong. A succession of District Commissioners have been indoctrinated by a successful corporation counsel with the doubtless legally sound doctrine that only the Board of Commissioners as a board has authority and is responsible for the executive functions. Consequently, individual Commissioners hesitate to make important decisions except after obtaining board action—a system inconsistent with maximum executive efficiency. Furthermore, when Congress does investigate alleged abuse or irregularity, it finds itself unable to fix personal responsibility and gets lost in a labyrinth of divided responsibilities and authorities.
4. The executive and legislative functions are not exercised by coordinated agencies on the same level, but the executive (the Commissioners and various semi-independent boards) are always in an inferior and suppliant position relative to the legislative body (the Congress of the United States).
5. The people of the District have no effective means of urging their needs either upon their executive and/or their legislative agencies, except by appeal to Congress in which they are not represented. A word of gratitude is due, however, to the many members of Congress who have devoted their time and thought to the affairs of the District and its people, and who have dealt so fairly with them. The good results are largely due to these members, of whom there are always many in each Congress, and the interest both Houses habitually take in the welfare of this orphan city.
6. The lack of authority vested in the commissioners and their consequent individual ineffectiveness, and the modest salary attached to the position, are deterrents for any outstanding business or professional man to give up his livelihood and accept appointment as one of the Commissioners. While the list of Commissioners does include many such men, they undertake the task only at a heavy personal sacrifice and it is always a very difficult candidate to find a new qualified candidate to fill a vacancy. On the other hand, can any other city boast of such a succession of high-minded, honest and zealous executives? |

D. C. Youth, 'Flying Santa' Die in Crash

Robert L. Muckenhirn, 20, of 308 U. St. ne., was killed in a plane crash yesterday while on a vacation with his mother, Mrs. Jessie L. Muckenhirn, in Rockland, Me. Pilot of the plane, 62-year-old William H. Wincapaw, known as the "Flying Santa Claus" for his Christmas remembrances dropped to isolated lighthouse keepers, also died in the seaplane crash.

Both bodies were recovered by a party of fishermen. Rockland Police Chief George Lillenthal said the light seaplane took off from Rockland and was gaining altitude when it suddenly plunged into the ocean.

Muckenhirn, less than a year out of the Army, was a former McKinley Tech High School student and had attended the Abbott School of Fine and Commercial Art.

Wincapaw, the pilot, had been flying since 1911 and operated the Maine Air Transport Co. at Rockland Municipal Airport. His company used converted C-47s for transportation of lobsters from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. He also operated a seaplane charter service to Penobscott Bay Islands.

He began his "Flying Santa" flights in 1927, dropping packages of food, cigarettes and magazines donated by food companies and individuals, to lonely lighthouse keepers and their families.

Farmer Assails 'Loaders,' Shoots 2 Persons, Self

Bassett, Va., July 16 (AP)—Ben P. Woody, 61-year-old farmer, walked into his home near here today and announced "there are too many loaders around here and I am going to get rid of them." Then fatally shot his sister-in-law, critically wounded a neighbor and pumped two .38-caliber bullets into his heart to himself.

Dr. D. L. Fleschman, coroner, gave a decision of murder and suicide. Mrs. Vergie Calbert, about 50, of Roanoke died shortly after being rushed to a Martinsville hospital, and hospital physicians said Mrs. Susie Stultz, 78, who resided near by, was in a "grave" condition.

Henry County Sheriff J. Mitchell Davis said Woody threatened his wife and his 63-year-old mother-in-law, Mrs. W. N. Friedell, but when his wife pleaded with him not to shoot he left the house and walked to a feedhouse 100 feet away where he killed himself.

Delay Hits Extension Of District Rent Curbs

Overton Blocks Bill In Senate After Its Sponsors Reject His Sub-Tenant Proviso

Senator John H. Overton (D., La.) yesterday blocked Senate action on a bill to give the District a three-month extension of rent control.

Senator Overton forced delay on the bill after sponsors refused to accept an amendment he proposed. The amendment called for giving subtenants the protection of rent control when the principal tenant had given up his lease.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), in charge of the bill for the Senate District Committee, told Overton on the floor the committee had agreed unanimously not to accept any amendments.

Would Extend Controls
McGrath explained the bill calls for a simple three-month extension of the present rent control law to carry it from December 31 this year through March 31, 1948. The purpose, he said, was to give Congress an opportunity early next year to decide what it wants to do about an additional District rent control extension.

When McGrath said he would oppose Overton's amendment, Overton announced he would object to further consideration of the rent control bill.

Senator Overton made clear that he wants to see rent control extended. He said the purpose of rent control is to stabilize occupancy so that "the landlord and no one else can drive tenants out. He said the present law does not protect sub-tenants. He said he believed the issue of this amendment would be settled without difficulty.

Action Blocked For Day
While Overton's objection was enough to block action for the day, McGrath said later a move may be made to find out if the proposed amendment would be acceptable to the House.

The House has already approved the straight three-month rent control extension. Without Overton's amendment, Senate approval would send the rent control measure to the White House.

Senator Overton also blocked action on McGrath's bill to give the District daylight saving time each year. The law under which the District now has daylight saving time is good for this year only.

The Senate also approved District bills to:
Authorize $65,000 for restoring the old Francis Scott Key house near Key Bridge as a permanent memorial.

Permit the B. & O. Railroad to build a siding near Franklin st. ne.

Revise the District Unemployment Compensation Act to give employers who served in the armed forces the right to reopen their business and obtain the benefits of lower contribution rates which they won by a pre-war record of stable employment.

The railroad siding bill went to the White House. The House had approved the building license and unemployment compensation bills, but Senate changes sent the bills back to the House for agreement on minor differences. The Francis Scott Key Memorial bill also goes to the House.

Beverly Payne Wins Beauty Prize At Colonial Beach

Colonial Beach, Va., July 16.—This Potomac River community's salty fishermen—resting between oyster wharfs and seasonal shucking fans peeled their eyes today.

A fully packed group of 33 contestants from nearby Fredericksburg swung into town for the annual beauty pageant of the Fredericksburg Businessmen's Association.

A crowd of several hundred persons, including out-of-town visitors and vacationists from Washington, saw tall, lanned Beverly T. Payne, 20, of Fredericksburg, representing radio station WFBA, walk off in a cloth-conserving bathing suit with first place—a loving cup.

Runners-up also from Fredericksburg were Dorothy T. Rowe, 20, representing Lowrey's, who took second place, and Martha Hughes, 21, the Jewel Box's candidate, third place.

New Post for Dr. Bevan
Richmond, Va., July 16 (AP)—Dr. Arthur C. Bevan, State geologist and director of the Virginia Geological Survey since 1929, will leave that position to become principal geologist of the Illinois State Geological Survey September 15.

Correct Spelling For Resorts Announced
By The Associated Press
The U. S. Division of Geography corrected yesterday careless spellings of names of two Anne Arundel County, Md., beach resorts.

On the word of originators of the Chesapeake Bay resort development, the agency accepted the spelling Beverly Beach, although most maps show it Beverly Beach and some even spell it Beverly. The resort is on the southern side of the entrance to West River. Similarly, the division recognized Riviera Beach as correct for a Patuxent River resort frequently called Rivers Beach.

Sanitary Code Urged As Tourist Trade Help

Richmond, Va., July 16 (AP)—A Virginia advisory legislative council committee on tourist trade was urged today to seek adoption of a comprehensive State sanitary code which would serve as a model for local health departments.

The proposal was made during a public hearing held in the Senate chamber today by the VALC committee of which Senator J. D. Haskins is chairman.

L. H. Peterson, secretary of the tourist trade committee of the Charlottesville and Albemarle County Chamber of Commerce, presented a statement to the committee, expressing pleasure that it had been authorized by the General Assembly to make a study concerning the need of sanitary laws affecting establishments serving tourist trade in the State.

He said Virginia "unfortunately has lagged far behind many other States in the enforcement of sanitary laws," and as a result, he continued, "many hotels, restaurants, soda fountains, drug store lunch-ettes and other kinds of food establishments prepare their food in filthy, unsanitary surroundings."

Craft Exhibit Stated

Waterford, Va., July 16.—The Waterford Festival Exhibit of Arts and Crafts will be held September 4-7. Proceeds from admission charges will be used to pay expenses of the exhibit and to finance classes in handicraft now being promoted at the Mill.

New Styles For Police

Baltimore, July 16 (AP)—New helmets for the ladies won't be the only style changes around Maryland this year.

The State Police Department is giving serious consideration to changing from caps to hats and adding a summer jacket to their wardrobe, Col. Beverly Ober, superintendent, reported.

"There is no question, but that hats are rather distinctive," he said. No decision has been made yet whether to make them soft or stiff-brimmed.

Citizens List Party

Silesia, Md., July 16.—Members of the Broad Creek Citizens' Association will hold a party Saturday evening at St. John's Hall. The next meeting of the association will be held Sept. 8.

Wheat Harvest Delayed

Frederick, Md., July 16.—Threshing and marketing of wheat here have been delayed by persistent showers. One elevator operator today said that wheat was running 20 per cent or more in moisture content, an unusually high figure. Yields are generally good, ranging from 24 to 30 bushels per acre, and the grain is selling at $2.39 a bushel on the local market.

Herndon Woman Named

Herndon, Va., July 16.—Mrs. Arthur Hyde Buell of Herndon has been appointed chairman of the Department of the American Home of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs.

County Gives to Hospitals

Frederick, Md., July 16.—The Board of County Commissioners today announced that the county will contribute $6000 to the Frederick Memorial Hospital fund-raising campaign. Goal in the drive is $600,000, and $250,000 has thus far been contributed.

Mildew Hits Md. Crops

Maryland cantaloupe and cucumber crops are threatened by an outbreak near Salisbury of Downy mildew, a fungus disease, according to University of Maryland pathologists. The disease, which caused extensive damage to Maryland crops last year, spreads rapidly in warm, moist weather. Dr. C. E. Cox of the College of Agriculture urged regular spraying or dusting of plants to prevent spread of the fungus.

Colonial Interpretation

Williamsburg, Va., July 16 (AP)—Officials of colonial Williamsburg, the organization carrying forward John D. Rockefeller Jr.'s restoration of this colonial capital to its eighteenth century appearance, has announced plans for construction of a temporary interpretation center here where movies, exhibits and other media will be utilized in briefing visitors before their tour of the colonial area.

Rotary Carnival Planned

Herndon, Va., July 16.—The Herndon Rotary Club has completed plans for its annual carnival at the Herndon School grounds July 21-26. Proceeds from the carnival will be used to finance youth activities in the community.

1400 Idle at Winchester

Winchester, Va., July 16.—F. W. Bailey of the local Virginia State Unemployment Service today said that approximately 1400 workers are unemployed in the Winchester area. Two-thirds of the unemployed are women, displaced seasonal food processing workers.

Prison Break Frustrated

Jessup, Md., July 16 (AP)—Three House of Correction prisoners were being held in close confinement today after an unsuccessful dash for freedom, which was thwarted by a guard.

200 Flying Saucers Advertise Sept. Fiesta in Falls Church

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM—About 200 "flying saucers" were scattered over Falls Church yesterday from an airplane to publicize the town's fall fiesta, to be held September 19-21. Above, Mike Chew, 6 (left), of 800 Berry st., Falls Church, passes one of the saucers which he retrieved from a tree to his brother, Gary. Fiesta profits will help residents buy land for public park.

Falls Church was bombed yesterday by a "supersonic flying saucer," at 4 p. m. yesterday.

The gadgets, which strongly resembled paper plates, were scattered from a low-flying plane and bore announcements of the town's "Fiesta" September 19-21 to raise funds for a public park.

C. F. Blanding, chairman of the Falls Church Park Planning Committee, said the three-day fiesta would include a country fair, flower shows, street dancing, parades, athletic events, historical pageant, and a tour of local historic homes. The paper "saucers" were scattered over Falls Church yesterday by L. B. Eakin, wartime naval flier, who lives at 408 Linden la. Chairman Blanding urged children finding the plates to save them for free fiesta tickets.

The proposed Falls Church park would cover roughly 14 acres in the Tripps Run area. It will serve primarily as a family picnic and recreation area. Some playground facilities will be set up, in addition to fireplaces, tables and swings.

Wheat Loans Processed in Md. Counties

By The Associated Press
Loans on this year's wheat and barley crops are now being processed in county A.A.A. offices. The State production and marketing administration of the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday at College Park, Md.

Administration officials pointed out farmers must have warehouse certificates before securing loans. Loan values on wheat by grade and storage location are as follows:

Garrett County: for grades No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3, $2.01, $1.99, $1.97. Allegany County: $2.01, $2.00, $1.98.

At the same time the administration said headquarters had been established at Pocomoke, Worcester County, for the purchase of surplus potatoes. Farmers interested in obtaining white potatoes for crop feeding were advised to communicate with Claude Morris at College Park.

W. Va. Counties To Study Flood Control July 29

Charleston, W. Va., July 16 (AP)—Plans initiating a coordinated flood control program in eastern West Virginia counties lying within the Potomac River region will be formulated July 29 at a meeting in Romney, State Forester William B. Sayers announced today.

He emphasized, however, that the proposed work does not include engineering projects. It represents simply an effort to "initiate a sound action program to solve water problems in one section of the State" by improved land-management practices in nonfarm woodlands, Sayers added.

The program has been made possible by newly appropriated Federal funds distributed through the United States Forest Service to West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Capt. E. A. Cruise Takes Command Of Air Station

Norfolk, Va., July 16 (AP)—Capt. Edgar A. Cruise took command of the Norfolk Naval Air Station and the Naval Air Bases of the Fifth Naval District this afternoon in brief exercises at the air station.

Preceding the formal change of command, 1500 officers and men of the four air facilities of the command marched in review before Captain Cruise and his predecessor, Capt. G. L. Compo.

Captain Compo has been assigned to the command of the naval air bases of Saipan, with additional duties as commander of Saipan and of the island of Rota, and as chief military government officer of Bonin, the Marianas and the subarea less Guam.

Cruise commanded the Carrier Shangri-La at the Bikini bomb tests last summer. The carrier sent up drone planes to make photographic records.

Italians Arrest 12 Youths

Rome, July 16 (AP)—Italian police arrested 12 youths and seized a number of illicit arms today in a nationwide drive against neo-Fascism.

4645 Lose Permits Under New Md. Law

Annapolis, Md., July 16 (AP)—The Department of Motor Vehicles reported today it had suspended 4645 owners' and operators' licenses as of June 30 under the new State financial responsibility law.

The report covered the first full fiscal year of operations under the law which makes a driver responsible for damages and physical injuries to others after he has been involved in an accident resulting in more than $50 damages or physical injuries.

During the fiscal year, 60,264 accident reports were processed by the financial responsibility law division. There were 18,205 notices of suspension sent, but 9566 of these were closed afterward.

Included among the drivers and owners whose licenses were suspended were 963 out-of-State drivers and 3682 Marylanders.

There were 428 cases closed and 376 suspensions rescinded at the end of the legal suspension period. The fund received $246,897 during the year and disbursed $61,612.

Henry N. Gries

Tulsa, Okla., July 16 (AP)—Henry N. Gries, 67, prominent oil man, died at his home early today.

Gries was president of the Deep Rock Oil Co. and the Burke-Gries Corp. A native of Buffalo, N. Y., he survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. James McBirney of Tulsa, and a sister, Mrs. Nora Koche of Buffalo.

World Nonstop Flight Planned, Refueling in Air

New York, July 16 (AP)—Two young pilots announced today they will try to fly around the world nonstop in a 100-horsepower monoplane which will be refueled while in flight.

The two fliers, Ted Thompson, of Belle Glade, Fla., and Hunter C. Moody, of Decatur, Ill., both 35, said they have planned the flight to prove the durability of small aircraft.

They said they expect to make the 20,672-mile flight in about 10 days. They will take off from La Guardia field on August 15 and will take on fuel from other planes at Gander, Shannon, Athens, Karachi, Hongkong, the Aleutians and Alaska.

Thompson, a wartime ferry pilot, and Moody, also a former Army flier, said the most hazardous portion of the flight will be from Gander to Shannon, a distance of 1069 miles.

Too Lenient Deal For Japs Not Good, Nippon Times Says

Tokyo, July 16 (AP)—A Tokyo newspaper commented today that "too lenient a treatment" of Japan by her conquerors might not be good for the country.

The Nippon Times, after expressing hope of an early peace treaty and approving an occupation program which avoids "harsh and unjust treatment," observed:

"Too lenient a treatment on the other hand might leave unremoved some of the institutions and leadership which were responsible for evils of the old regime and make possible regrowth of these undemocratic forces. Not only would such a reactionary development cause a revival of international distrust and suspicion, but it would also be farthest from desires of Japanese themselves who already have suffered too much from the mistakes of their former leaders."

Dead Fish Litter Sarasota Beaches In Mystery Plague

Sarasota, Fla., July 16 (AP)—Dead and decaying fish littered Sarasota County beaches today as the result of a mysterious plague.

City workers have been scooping up the odorous mass along the sea wall in front of the city and Sarasota Bay itself is dotted with innumerable bodies of fish.

The plague seems to be moving steadily northward aided by prevailing winds.

Most of the dead fish are small, of the Spanish whiting and grunt variety, with a few eel and larger fish.

Plankton has been mentioned as possible cause but there has been no authoritative statement on the situation.

Medal of Honor Winner Reenlists

Richmond, Va., July 16 (AP)—The central examining station here has announced the reenlistment of its first Medal of Honor winner, Junior J. Spurrier, of Bluefield, W. Va.

Spurrier, a technical sergeant in the infantry in the recent war, enlisted for assignment with the Army Air Forces at Langley field.

The 6-foot-1-inch veteran was given the Nation's highest award for his single-handed capture of a German-occupied town of Aachen, France, after killing 25 Germans and capturing 20 others.

Peronist Asks Probe Of Argentine Press

Buenos Aires, July 16 (AP)—A congressional investigation into the financial setup of every newspaper, magazine and news agency in Argentina was asked today in the Chamber of Deputies by Peronist Jose Viza.

It was recalled that the national newspaper La Tribuna was closed recently by the government on the grounds of failure to contribute to the newspapermen's pension fund as provided by law. It was closed shortly after it began a series of strong attacks against "economic czar" Miguel Miranda, president of the Central Bank.

400-Pound Safe With $3000 Stolen From Culpeper Cafe

Culpeper, Va., July 16.—The 400-pound safe of the Rita High-Rise Restaurant here was carried off by thieves early today, with contents valued at over $3000.

The theft was reported today by Mr. and Mrs. John Plevakis, proprietors, who found the main door of their restaurant forced open, apparently with a pinch bar.

Change in two cash registers was untouched, but 25 cartons of cigarettes also were taken, they said.

Plevakis said the safe, 20 inches square by two feet high, contained $2500 in bills; two glass banks, each containing about $50 in coins; a $10 gold piece, eight silver dollars, and a $100 bill.

Also in the safe, he told police, were insurance policies, the deed to the restaurant property, two yellow-gold watches worth $75 each, and a necklace valued at $100.

Police said the safe was apparently rolled to the door on its own rollers and then lifted into a waiting automobile or truck. The police broadcast a lookout for the safe.

Mrs. Kingsley Dies; Wife of Railroad Head

Mrs. Mary Amos Tumlin Kingsley, 54, of 412 N. Cherry st., Falls Church, wife of the president of the board of the Norfolk & Southern Railway, died in Virginia Beach, Va., Tuesday.

Mrs. Kingsley accompanied her husband, Joseph T. Kingsley, to Virginia Beach where he was to attend meetings of the board of the Norfolk & Western Railway and Bus Corp.

She was born and educated in Columbus, Ga., but had lived in Washington for more than 20 years. She had been ill for some time.

Mrs. Kingsley is survived by her husband and three children, Col. Joseph T. Kingsley, jr., USA, Chevy Chase; Mrs. Meta Kingsley, Humphreys, West Point, N. Y.; and Miss Mary Lee Kingsley, Falls Church; her mother, Mrs. John W. Tumlin, jr., Columbus, Ga.; a brother, John W. Tumlin, Columbus, Ga.; and a sister, Miss Billie B. Tumlin, of Atlanta, Ga.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed.

Sister Catherine Flynn

Solemn requiem mass for Sister Catherine Flynn, 64, of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, who died Monday in Providence Hospital, will be celebrated today at 9 a. m. in the chapel of the St. Anne's Infant Home, 2200 California st. n.w. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Sister Catherine spent 33 years at St. Rose's school—where last year became St. Ann's Infant Home—teaching classes in sewing and dressmaking.

On expert needlewoman, she and her pupils visited the White House on several occasions to present wives of Presidents with monograms they had made.

Survivors are three sisters, Mrs. Gertrude, Grimont, Upper Darby, Pa.; Marie, Newell, Atlantic City, N. J.; and Sister Kathleen, I. M. H. Immaculata, Pa. Also surviving are two nieces who are Daughters of Charity, Sister Teresa of Wilmington, Del., and Sister Eugenia, who is at the St. Ann's Infant Home here.

S. J. Jennings, Rail Employee, Is Fatally Hurt

Lynchburg, Va., July 16 (AP)—Samuel J. Jennings, 65, of Everettgreen, who lost his legs in an accident while serving as a Norfolk & Western train conductor 41 years ago, died in Virginia Baptist Hospital at 8 a. m. today, the victim of another accident in the employment of the same company.

A boiler which Jennings attended as pumper at Everettgreen blew up yesterday and he suffered severe scalds and first degree burns which caused his death. He had served as pumper there for the past 36 years.

The previous accident which cost Mr. Jennings his legs occurred at Lowry in 1908.

Funeral services will be held at Everettgreen Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon with burial in Everettgreen Cemetery.

Will you tell me the best way to remove dried shellac stains from a washable rayon blouse? I have tried alcohol, turpentine, and soap and water with no success.

H. A.

Alcohol is considered the best agent for removing shellac from fabric, but apparently you have a very stubborn stain to deal with in this case. You might try soaking the stain in alcohol for several hours to soften it, then rinsing in fresh alcohol. Acetate rayon and vinylon are injured by alcohol. However, if your dress wasn't harmed by the first application, it is apparently made of some other type of rayon. Another suggestion would be to soak the spots in a mixture of equal parts of ammonia and turpentine, rinse in fresh turpentine, then wash in soapy water.

Will you please tell me how to clean an unlined pocketbook of black calf? How can I avoid a grayish cast on the folds?

J. W.

Smooth leather pocketbooks can be cleaned with saddle soap and a neutral cleaner or special leather preserver. If the dye has rubbed off, it can be renewed with good quality black leather dye. Such dyes can be successfully applied at home if the job is carefully done. Buff the leather well afterwards with a clean cloth, apply a very thin coat of liquid wax (the same type of wax you use on furniture), and buff again. This will keep the dye from rubbing off on gloves and clothing.

Can you tell me where I can purchase silver in the American Beauty pattern, made by the Manchester Silver Company? I have inquired at a number of stores but have been unable to find one selling this pattern. Also can you tell me why Bermuda onions are so called?

This column has received several inquiries recently regarding the American Beauty pattern. It is sold by a jewelry store on 15th st. in downtown Washington.

Bermuda onions received their name from the island of Bermuda, where large quantities of onions are grown.

The linoleum on my kitchen floor is badly worn and so light in color that it shows soil easily. Is it possible to paint it so that it will bear up well under heavy traffic? I am going to paint the walls and woodwork aqua and the inside of the cabinets red, using Peter Hunt decorations in red, blue, black, and white. What dark color would you suggest for the floor?

R. N. L.
Linoleum can be painted satisfactorily with a good grade of regular porch or floor enamel. Your paint dealer can tell you exactly what to buy for this purpose. Before painting the linoleum, make sure it's clean and free of wax. Give it a thorough scrubbing with soap and water. If necessary, use wax remover. Then apply a thin coat of paint with a wide brush. Allow it to dry, then apply a second coat. When it's completely dry, wax with either paste or self-polishing liquid wax.

A dark gray floor would be attractive with the color scheme you describe. Or, if you're not afraid of plenty of color, you might use a dark, dull red.

Is there any way to remove mercurochrome stains from a light blue cotton dress? The dress has not been washed or cleaned but the stains have been on it for several weeks.

J. L. A.

Mercurochrome stains are very hard to remove unless you treat them promptly. The following procedure should be followed:

First sponge the stain well with a liquid made of one part alcohol and two parts water. Next, work glycerine into the cloth to help loosen the stain. Continue using as long as any color bleeds from the stain. Then wash well in soap-suds, and rinse with water to which a few drops of ammonia water have been added.

If stains still remain after this treatment, apply 10 per cent acetic acid with a medicine dropper, then rinse well with water. Test with acetic acid first on an inconspicuous part of the dress to be sure it will not remove the dye.

How can I remove wood smoke stains from a brick mantel?

Q. R. B.

Scrub the bricks with a strong solution of tri-sodium phosphate. If there are stubborn stains, scrub with steel wool and scouring powder or a mechanic's hand soap containing sand.

Will you tell me how to rid a mattress of bedbugs which have come from some mysterious source? I have used DDT freely with very poor results.

FRANTIC

I believe you are using the best possible ammunition against the bedbugs and will eventually get rid of them. Entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture say that is the most effective bedbug killer ever developed. It may take a few weeks for all the bugs in hiding in the mattress to come out. However, if you sprayed mattress and bedstead well with a "residual" spray of 5 per cent DDT solution, the insects are bound to come in contact with it sooner or later. The bugs absorb the poison through their feet and legs and it usually takes several hours for them to die.

I am sorry not to be able to suggest a speedier means of eradicating these pests, but bedbugs that have gotten inside a mattress present a very difficult problem—one that was almost insoluble before DDT was developed.

Don't Nurture Inferiority In Your Child

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

No really loving parent intends to show partiality to one or another of her children. She is the last one to be conscious that she is giving that impression. But some behavior is natural to her. She tends to champion the rights of the baby. She is apt to give the greatest privileges to the first-born whose coming was an event in her life. It is impossible to duplicate no matter how many subsequent children she bears.

Children are sensitive to their parents' treatment. They feel bitter when they are denied pleasures or the parents act severely toward them. The commonplace cry, "Oh, you're so mean to me," reveals the depths of their distress when a parent is compelled to scold or punish them or prohibit their desires.

Feel Inferior

Children are apt to look at some other member of the family and think that he or she is enjoying more privileges, or getting off without punishment for behavior that merits it. Few children have any keen sense of superiority or consider themselves of paramount importance to their parents.

He is a poor judge of a parent's real emotion toward him. The parent expects the love to be taken for granted, but she exhibits stronger and more dramatic emotions of shame and anger toward his conduct, which convince him that he is a humiliation and not an object of pride to her.

Parents Must Be Fair

A mother has to be self-conscious of her behavior and how it appears to the eyes of the child. Is she more demonstrative toward the baby? Does she pile privileges on the older child? Does she make one child "give in" more than she does another? It will help if she explains that she treated him the same as a baby and will treat the baby similarly when he is older, and try to make the sharing fifty-fifty.

Parents may be partial to the child who gives them the least trouble, thus aggravating the condition since the favored child has fewer reasons to be obnoxious and the non-favored one an increased burden of grievances.

Partiality, whatever the reason, leaves an ugly ineradicable wound. A child must believe in his parents' fairness and justice if he is to grow up without suspicion of all other persons.

Women Celebrate 'Seneca Falls Day'

By Genevieve Reynolds

ON JULY 18, 1848, a band of spirited women led by Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton held the first Equal Rights Convention in the world at Seneca Falls, N. Y. Supporters of the movement are celebrating the ninety-ninth anniversary of this historical event with programs, pageants and parties.

A faction of the split National Woman's Party commemorated Seneca Falls Day with a garden party and reception last night honoring Senator Arthur Capper and Representative John Marshall Robison and the other Congressional sponsors of the Equal Rights Amendment now pending in Congress. Scene of the affair was Alva Belmont House, headquarters of the party, which is being retained by Miss Anita Pollitzer, distinguished national chairman of the party, and Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the World Woman's Party, who were responsible for the introduction of a Constitutional Amendment which reads in part "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

At Odds on Leadership

The National Woman's Party split last January over a fight to control the national organization. A pending law suit will determine the outcome. Although the party is at odds over who will head the original party and take over its headquarters at 144 B st. ne., all support the Equal Rights Amendment.

Approximately 200 Maryland club women, representing 30 groups, including the DAR, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Business and Professional Women's Club and the Baltimore Pen Women were at the meeting. Conspicuous by their absence were members of the D. C. branch, National Woman's Party. This local group does not recognize Miss Pollitzer as chairman. None was invited to last night's celebration. Instead they will go to Baltimore Saturday to observe Seneca Falls Day.

Capper Backs Amendment

Speaking at last night's party, Senator Capper, chief sponsor of the Equal Rights Amendment in the Senate said, "I earnestly hope that while I am your sponsor, that as a representative of Kansas I may be able to bring this campaign to a victorious conclusion. I regard the Equal Rights Amendment as one of fundamental importance to the American people."

Representative Robison of Kentucky, chief sponsor of the Equal Rights amendment in the House and ranking member of the House Judiciary Committee, declared, "There can be equal justice only under law for men and women if there is equality in the laws themselves. There are many gross discriminations still existing in the laws of several States. State laws may differ, but no State in our

"Passage of the Equal Rights Amendment lies within the hands of the Republican Party," Miss Pollitzer said. "Republican leaders have an opportunity unparalleled in history to liberate one half of the civilian population," she concluded.

Newspaper Women Give Tea for ZaSu Pitts

RESIDENTIAL and official Washington donned its coolest summer finery and turned out at the American Newspaper Women's Club tea yesterday honoring ZaSu Pitts, star of the Olney Theater's current hit, "The Late Christopher Bean," and pretty Nancy Davis, another star of the cast. The party was held at the club's headquarters, 1604 20th st. nw.

Conversation hummed about politics, the theater and press. Miss Pitts told a small group, "I'm definitely 'agin' communism. I'd like to get on a soap box and warn everybody against supporting it or other isms."

Woman in Her Forties Was Babied by Mother Until Latter Died Two Years Ago; Now Dad Absorbs All Her Time and Marriage Is Shot

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am in my early forties, have been married eight years and have a child 3 years old. When my mother died, two years ago, my father—now 74—came to live with us. My husband wouldn't break up our home to go live with him, a selfish stand which I've never forgotten. I've never got over mother's death, as she was my constant daily companion and treated me like a baby. Father enjoyed playing cards with the young men of the parish and never spent five minutes with her. Now he wants my company from the time he gets up until he retires.

I arise at 9 a. m., he at 9:30 and I must breakfast with him. The baby must sit on his lap during breakfast, although the baby is up daily at 6:30 with his daddy, who feeds and dresses him before going to work. After breakfast, baby and I must sit with father for an hour while he smokes his pipe and from then until lunch he hangs on the radio.

After lunch the ball game is blasting away and baby and I mustn't talk. After the game, he walks out to get his paper and is back in time for supper. He and I have supper together, after which we play gin rummy until 11 p. m. three nights a week. The other four evenings, he and I go out to a cousin's house, where he sits drinking beer until after midnight.

Father Strikes His Son-in-Law

This goes on week in and week out. My husband and I haven't had five minutes' companionship in 18 months. He doesn't eat a meal at home, although he pays all the expenses of the house and is here after work until the baby goes to sleep, and also stays in the four nights I must go out with father.

He was always doing things to improve the house before. Now he says he will do nothing until father gets out. Recently father scolded the baby and when my husband sharply objected, father struck him, told him to get out and ordered him not to touch the child. My husband took the baby, left him with a sister, returned and had my father arrested.

The court ordered father to refrain from interference if he stays with us, and now he is driving me almost mad, insisting on my leaving my husband and going with him, taking the baby. This would mean my going to work, leaving the baby with him all day—as his only income is a Social Security pension.

On the other hand, my husband says if father stays he is going to put the baby in a pre-school where he can be with other children instead of a companion to my father, who is not good for him. In these things I always side with father, because I promised mother to take care of him. Should I go with father and make a home for him? Or try to salvage what is left of our marriage and ask father to leave? V. G.

Dad's Stranger To Real Feeling

DEAR V. G.: Your father is as selfish a rascal as the human race ever produced. He gave your mother the back of his hand while she lived, and now he's playing "pig in the parlor" in your household out of sheer cussedness.

There isn't an ounce of decent sentiment in his system. He is hogging your company and the baby's not out of interest or affection, but to take revenge upon your husband, whom he hates with deadly venom,—partly from a sense of rivalry, and partly because that good man has always "had his number" and he knows it.

As for your daft championship of his malicious performance, it means that on the score of reason, character and common sense, you're as little equipped to be a wife and mother as an infant would be.

Figuratively Woman Hasn't Been Weaned

FIGURATIVELY, you haven't been weaned. Just as you say, you were mother's baby to the day she died; and in latterday relation to your father, you remind me of a rabbit being swallowed by a boa constrictor.

Mrs. David D. Caldwell, as chairman, and Mrs. Marie C. Hocker have been appointed to serve on the National Building and Grounds Committee.

For advice: If there is any way to get him out of the house, do so. Your husband's behavior in the circumstances has been remarkably considerate, long suffering and mature, all through. I suppose he stands by for the baby's sake primarily,—and believe me, the baby needs his dad.

So, indeed, do you. You'd certainly be heading for hell in a handbasket if you cut loose from his support and protection, to satisfy your sire's senile campaign to get his goat. M. H.

Prince Abdullah Is Honored At Arab Legation Luncheon

UNDER a canopy on the terrace of the Saudi-Arabian Legation yesterday a stag luncheon was held for 50 guests. There was one long table, centered with three enormous bouquets of red and white roses. His Royal Highness, Prince Saif al-Islam Abdullah of Yemen, the guest of honor, was seated at the center. Across from him was his host, the Minister of Saudi Arabia, Sheikh Asad Al-Faqih, and on the prince's right sat the Ambassador of India, Asaf Ali.

Members of the prince's entourage, who accompanied him from Cairo, were among the guests. Others at the colorful affair included the Ambassador of Turkey, Huseyin Rasip Baydur; the Egyptian Minister, Anis Aziz; the Minister of the Lebanon, Charles Malik; the Minister of Syria, Fais el-Khoury; the Minister of Afghanistan, Abdul Hosayn Aziz; and the Minister of Iran, F. Noury-Esfandiary.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Norman Armour, was there, and Undersecretary of Commerce, William C. Foster. Also, Undersecretary of War Kenneth C. Royall; Undersecretary of Navy John L. Sullivan; Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Military Aide to the President; Col. William Eddy, Raymond Muir, Stanley Woodward, Robert Breckinridge, Charles Rayner, Richard Sanger, Henry Villard and Henry L. Delmel. Several United Nations delegates attended as well.

Later in the evening the prince was a dinner guest of Col. William Eddy, State Department official, who in 1946 headed a mission for his office into Yemen.

Kents Entertain At Dinner Party

MR. and MRS. Frank Kent, jr., entertained a small company at dinner last evening at Collingswood, on the Potomac. Their guests included Countess d'Anecourt, Armand Wapler, counselor of the French Embassy; Mr. and Mrs. Ramond Tartere of Middlesburg, Va.; and Mr. and Mrs. d'Argent.

Suits Suit—But Hatters Go Mad

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, July 18.—There was good news for the conservative woman in today's series of Fall Fashion Preview staged here by the New York Dress Institute. At least two prominent designers offered clothes that, with a few alterations, might be hanging in your closet right now.

Both Herbert Sondheim and Samuel Kass have elected to follow a middle-of-the-road policy in this race for a new silhouette. Perhaps they might be termed "a little left of center." They've lowered the skirt, put more fullness or drapery into it, taken some padding out of the shoulders—and let it go at that.

The results are reassuring, to say the least. Samuel Kass proves that it is possible to wear classic suits and dresses that incorporate the new silhouette lines, yet remain simple and wearable.

Many of his loveliest suits retain the slim skirt and simple, straight jacket, merely lengthened and flared slightly at the hip-line. He finds an excuse to put a bit of fur trimming on almost all his suits. This is a pretty fashion, one which hasn't been seen since before the war.

Soft, sheer wools for afternoon and evening in becoming shades of green, rust and brown were highlights of the Kass collection. In these he drops the hemline to the ankle or raises it to 14 inches, according to the type of dress. Both he and Mr. Sondheim agree that long, very full skirts for dress-up occasions are going to play a more and more important role in fashion as the season advances.

Hats Reflect Desperation

IN the hat department, the news is not so reassuring. Milliners, in a desperate race to catch up with the new designs for clothes, have created some terrifying specimens.

This morning at the millinery show we saw:

Big, billowing crowns and little brims. Deep, wide brims loaded with a superstructure of satin and velvet.

Bulbous crowns with side-to-side width.

Almost without exception these hats require a radically new hair-do. New York's prettiest models pull their locks straight back from their foreheads, and plaster them down over their ears in flat coils. Even on them it doesn't look good. So, fretted many observers, what hope is there for the rest of us?

A word of good cheer came from Mrs. Maude Moody, veteran millinery editor of Women's Wear Daily.

"Don't forget that milliner-made hats cannot be reproduced in all their original extravagance," she said. "So the mass-produced millinery you see later in the stores will be modified and probably not so magnificently massive."

But she warned, "All hats will look radically different and last year's numbers can't be salvaged."

John Fredericks, famed creator of fabulous headgear, takes exception to most of this year's hat styles. He did not exhibit today, but will show his collection privately later in the week.

(For a story on Mr. Fredericks and what he thinks hats should look like, read Peggy Preston's column Sunday.)

New in fall suits is this three-piece costume of faen and wine colored wool included in Herbert Sondheim's collection shown to fashion editors in New York yesterday. The medium-length jacket has a nipped-in waistline and a sleeveless tunic blouse of the same length.

Mlle. Gisele Chautemps Complimented at Luncheon

MRS. Nathan Hurwitz entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower in honor of Mlle. Gisele Chautemps, daughter of the former French Premier and Mme. Chautemps, who will be married to Dr. Thornton Tayloe Perry in

Charles Town, W. Va., today. Mme. Chautemps was among the luncheon guests and others were Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mrs. Perry, mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Edward Bartlett, Mrs. James McPherson, Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, Mrs. Roland B. Anderson and Miss Doreen Hurwitz, daughter of the hostess. Mrs. Hurwitz had decorated the table with a tiny bride gown in white satin with a train of real Milan lace and carrying a bouquet of fresh flowers which Mrs. Hurwitz presented to the bride-to-be.

Olney Theater Bean Is Delightful Fare

The Olney Theater has its best offering since its opening "Dream Girl" in "The Late Christopher Bean," which Zasu Pitts and several other fine players will be romping in through Sunday evening. You'll enjoy it a lot.

Miss Pitts has a grand role in Abby, the servant girl who befriended a poor painter 10 years before the curtain goes up. Now, a decade after his death, the art world is acclaiming his work, the few examples of which are commanding high prices. Zasu plays her role quietly and gently, gradually achieving a nice pathos.

Her audiences expect her to use her hands. Which she does. However, warming as is this trick to her audience, she's most effective when not overdoing it. Her speaking is clear and strong, as it should be, but it is through pantomime and suggestion that she really defines Abby.

While some of the Olney standbys are in the cast, three of the leads are played by a trio touring the summer circuit with Miss Pitts. And they're mighty welcome.

Frank Wilcox, a veteran player, has the doctor role well in hand—the most interesting male character in Sidney Howard's 1932 adaptation from the French of Rene Franchois. You begin by liking the doctor, but he turns out to be as mean as his wife when big money comes to hand.

Zolya Talma, a player you may recall from Olney's early days, under the direction of Steve Cochran, does a fine, assured job as the mistress of the house who was prettier than Abby's deceased benefactor.

Nancy Davis, the likable sister, is spirited—and good-looking. She manages to make what might have been a sappy, cloying girl into a real person.

Of the resident company, Nancy Holland shows her mettle as the unpleasant sister. Miss Holland, the most reliable of our Olney players, has given us a proficient variety of roles in recent weeks and rates a hand for holding up to Miss Pitts' importations, who've had the advantage of a previous week at Maine's celebrated Ogunquit.

James Karen is relaxing nicely in his juvenile assignments, leading man Joseph Hardy has a mean role for a change and Michael Howard and Richard Briggs complete the company.

Yes, as Miss Pitts and her associates are doing it, you'll like "The Late Christopher Bean." We were glad we went and so seemed every one else in the first night and audience. You will be, too. R. L. C.

The Heel Wears Thin 'Hero' Survives
Noose Too Long

By Richard L. Coe

EVERY SO OFTEN a picture comes along with a heel for a hero. Sometimes—as in "Double Indemnity"—the picture gets away with it. Then again, it doesn't.

"They Won't Believe Me," at Keith's, centers around one of these rotters. He's a complete stinker who plots his wife's murder but doesn't have to go through with it thanks to her suicide. At least it looks like suicide.

But for our money he's a thoroughly boring louse and personally we couldn't care less what happens to him. Unfortunately, for us at any rate, most of "They Won't Believe Me" is devoted to making one wonder what will.

The film was produced by Joan Harrison, who once was the artful Alfred Hitchcock's right hand gal. It has some tricky twists, right enough, and it's perfectly possible you'll find it reasonably interesting. You should see it from the beginning; to whet your appetite, Keith's is seating no one during the final five minutes of the picture.

Larry Ballantine is married to the rich Gretta. He plays around with other gals who suit his fancy. When Janice, a New York magazine writer, sees too much of Larry, his wife buys him a brokerage partnership on the coast and the gal transfers to Canada. He begins himself for a while until his partner's secretary, Verna, catches his eye.

Verna is as much of a tramp as Larry and they get along fine. While finds out about Verna and also discovers that Janice has been transferred to L. A. She buys a lonely ranch house where she and Larry can be alone, alone, alone. Not even a phone. The only friend she's got is a horse.

But Larry can't forget Verna. He persuades her to cash a juicy check on his and his wife's joint checking account and to run off with him. In an auto accident she's burned to death beyond recognition—all but her wedding ring, which Verna had bought in the five and dime for appearance's sake.

Everyone thinks Larry's wife is the charred female and he does his best to confirm the impression. Then he goes home planning to kill his wife and enjoy her money. But she's fooled him by jumping or falling off a mediocre cliff. He tosses her body in a watery ravine and goes off to Central America.

There he meets up with the magazine gal (who sure acts around). She lures him back to California, where, after some desultory searching, the waterlogged wife is found.

Flashback Telling
The yarn is unrolled in a courtroom where Larry frankly admits he intended to kill his wife but insists he didn't. The question is whether or not the jury will acquit him.

Larry, you see, is supposed to be a real hand with the ladies, which for all we know, Robert Young, who plays him, may very well be. Personally he strikes us as a pain in the neck, to put it kindly.

The others do what they can, but with the exception of the gadabout magazine lass, believably acted by Jane Greer, so are they all, all pains in the neck. Jane looks mighty smart, and her Washington friends will be pleased to find her doing so well. Susan Hayward is the devilish Verna, another eye-filling proposition.

As far as we're concerned, you can take it or leave it.

"OKLAHOMA!" seats go on sale today at the National box office. The air-conditioned house has been keeping its box office staff busy getting those mail orders sorted out for the musical's third engagement here. And while on the subject, don't forget: the curtain goes up at 8:20 nights and 2:20 matinees for this one. . . . Which means if you're late, you stand risk of missing "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'," that survey song and "Kansas City" . . . So this is a punctuality note: tickets today and certain time 10 minutes earlier than you're used to.

BOOKING DEPT: Ray Whitley and his "in person" show of Westerners will be at the Atlas Theater this weekend—Sunday, Monday and Tuesday—for Ray's first appearances in the East. . . . You may have seen his RKO musical shorts. . . . On the Atlas screen will be "Ramrod" and "Susie Steps Out."

SUNDAY NIGHT sees the opening of Catholic University's second play in its season-long manuscript series. . . . This will be "Kingdom of the Blind," a melodrama by Frank Ford, dealing with diabolical possession. . . . As with all C. U. plays, this one will run for three weeks, omitting Sunday nights after the opening week.

NEWSBREAK DEPT: The Olney Theater's new program design is a mighty purty thing, with amusing drawings by Fred Feels. . . . The back page, though, has a billing both Lillian Hellman and Walt Disney would much enjoy: "Next week, Ruth Chatterton," it says, "in 'Three Little Foxes'." That sorta be quite a play.

Marshall Told U. S. Has Palestine Policy

By Drew Pearson

President Truman and his Secretary of State, Gen. George Marshall, have had their first difference on foreign policy. The issue was Palestine.

Lovett

A short time ago, the President was informed that State Department officials were ignoring his statements regarding a Jewish homeland, to some extent, steering an opposite course from that fixed by the President of the United States.

Members of Congress who conferred with the new Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett and even with Marshall himself reported back to the White House that they were told the United States had no policy on Palestine. The United States, they were informed, would have to wait until the General Assembly of the United Nations meets in September in order to fix policy.

Meanwhile, President Truman had made a strong statement on Palestine stressing American sympathy for the idea of a Jewish homeland. Despite this, a group of Senators calling at the State Department were informed that the United States still had no Palestine policy.

As a result, Truman called in General Marshall, informed him that the United States very definitely does have a Palestine policy. Statements made by the President of the United States, he said, constitute American foreign policy and are to be followed by the State Department.

Secretary Marshall agreed and asked if the President would like to have him make a special statement to the press on Palestine. Truman thought it was too late for this and the matter was dropped. There was no personal row and the two men remain as good friends as ever.

Democratic Director Gael Sullivan should take a tip from the Army when it comes to charges of drunken driving. Sullivan, driving from Washington, D. C., to his home in Woonsocket, R. I., went off the road. A teetotaler, Sullivan was charged with drunken driving, claimed he went asleep at the wheel. The court compromised with a $100 fine, plus $100,000 worth of bad publicity.

In contrast, Brig. Gen. August W. Kissner was arrested for drunken driving in Washington on April 17, but has not yet been brought to trial.

It was first postponed to April 26, then to May 19. Meanwhile, the Army transferred General Kissner to Germany.

If the general had been an enlisted man, the story might have been different.

The District of Columbia is still awaiting the return of General Kissner to bring him to trial. However, it may have a long time to wait.

Death of an Ambassador

Final chapter in a paradoxical tragedy took place this week when the body of the late Greek Ambassador, Cimon Diamontopoulos, was flown on President Truman's new plane back to Greece.

Ambassador Diamontopoulos died a few hours after a conference with Secretary of State Byrnes at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York last December. Reports have since circulated that the Ambassador was shocked over some of the things his Prime Minister, Constantine Tsaldaris, who participated in the conference, said to Byrnes. However, here is the actual story of what happened.

Premier Tsaldaris had been begging Byrnes to give Greece more territory at the expense of Bulgaria. This Byrnes refused to do, pointing to the territorial mistakes made in the peace treaties of the last war.

Finally, during the last Tsaldaris-Byrnes conference, the Greek Premier looked tired, worn, and so nervous that at one point he broke into tears. Feeling sorry for him, Byrnes gave some practical suggestions on how to present a petition to the Big Four Foreign Ministers, and then turning to the much healthier-looking Ambassador Diamontopoulos, he said:

"Get the Ambassador here to prepare the papers for you. He is familiar with the situation and can save you a lot of time and work."

The two Greek diplomats left a few hours later. Ambassador Diamontopoulos, who had appeared to be in the best of health, was dead of heart failure. Premier Tsaldaris, who had then seemed on the verge of a breakdown, is still carrying on as Foreign Minister of Greece.

Merry-Go-Round

It isn't being advertised, but a friend of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has been scouting the country looking over prospects for 48. The Justice himself is keeping aloof. . . . Ex-Gov. Jimmy Alford may run against Texas Junior Senator Pappy O'Daniel next year. . . . Henry Wallace will start another stumping tour in September, this time combing the Middle West and the deep South. Wallace will even speak in Mississippi. . . . Democratic National Treasurer George Killion returned to his native Glenwood Springs, Colo., homestead after an absence of 32 years, by luck stumbled on the wedding ring his mother lost 35 years before, and the old black saddle he had used riding to school every day. . . . Streamlined Massachusetts Senator Henry Cabot Lodge looks like something just stepped out of a Yale University yearbook—except for the bulldog pipe.

What If Soong Had Said Yes to Clyde's Plan?

New York.—Exactly 15 years ago Clyde Pangborn emerged from a hotel room in Seattle where he had been conferring with T. V. Soong. Reporters asked him: "What's the story?" This is what had happened: Pangborn had completed around-the-world flight the year before. He had made an unauthorized stop-off in Japan and was jailed there for two months. When he returned to America he was famous and—like all other pilots in those depression years—unemployed. He talked to many about air power and mentioned, casually, how easy it would be to bomb the Emperor's palace in Tokyo. He'd do it, for one million dollars.

Kung

Pangborn's friend sent a message to H. H. Kung in China. Then Pangborn was instructed to fly to Seattle to meet T. V. Soong, who had just negotiated a $50-million-dollar loan for China. Soong had instructions from his government to talk to Pangborn. They met in a Seattle hotel room, where the flier outlined his project: He'd supply the plane and crew. The take-off would be from China. He'd head for Fujiyama, then swoop low over Tokyo and bomb the royal palaces. One million dollars. . . . Soong said no—because China's army wasn't big enough to defend the country against the Japanese retaliation.

"Speculate on what might have happened if Soong had said yes to me," said Pangborn at his table in El Morocco yesterday. A war would have resulted in 1932. Hoover might have been defeated. MacArthur, Chief of Staff, and young The destruction of Japanese military and naval power would have eliminated Russia's fear of a two-front war and perhaps no Soviet-Nazi pact would have been entered into. Or perhaps Japan would have survived. The history of the world might have been altered if Soong had said yes and Pangborn had bombed the Emperor's palace. . . . And when Pangborn emerged from the Seattle hotel room and was confronted by the reporters, he shrugged: "Nothing, boys. No story."

Jack Whitney and the Rosenwald family are backing the publication of a new science magazine to be edited by Jerry Piel, former science editor of Life Magazine. . . . Dore Schary, production head at RKO, has been invited to speak at the Nobel Prize dinner in New York this winter. . . . Henry Wallace's New Republic will change its format again. It will have a slick cover with color and visual art throughout the magazine. . . . The State Department's Voice of America broadcast to Russia a report on Local 892 of the Musicians Union. Arnold Belheim made the broadcast for the union and told the Russians about the earnings of musicians here, the working conditions, and the fact that there is no political discrimination.

George Burns was describing his early years in vaudeville when he thought that the easiest way was to follow whatever vogue was popular at the time. Because Latin dance teams were getting the top money in vaudeville, Burns organized the dance team of "Burns, Jose & Co. Fantastic Dancers." One day, while waiting in the outer office of Farley & Marcus, theatrical agents, Burns heard a call come in for a dog act in Ronkonkoma for $10. . . . When Burns was ushered into Farley's office and was asked: "What can you do?" he said: "I got a dog act." He was given the one-performance booking at Ronkonkoma. Burns found two stray dogs, took them along and placed them onstage.

Robert Montgomery will head the Hollywood division of the International Rescue and Relief Committee. . . . Eddie Condon's book, "I Played Rhythm," will be published by Holt in the fall. . . . Condon tells of the time a lady approached Fats Waller and asked him to explain jazz. Waller replied: "Lady, if you got to ask, you ain't got it." . . . The current issue of the Official Railroad Guide, listing the officers and personnel of the Lancaster & Chester Railway Co., includes Vice President Ham Fisher, Charles MacArthur, Samuel Hopkins Adams and Billy Seeman. William F. Halsey is listed as "Vice President in Charge of White Horse Supply." Bobby Jones of Atlanta is attorney, Lowell Thomas, advertising agent, and Clair Maxwell, the magazine editor, is officially listed as "News Butcher."

The mayor of Las Vegas, Nev., is issuing a proclamation for July 20 designating it as Damon Runyon Memorial Fund Day. The day's ceremonies will be climaxed by a baseball game between the Las Vegas Police Department and the combined Stick-men and Card dealers of the gambling casinos.

In Which Mrs. Ringo Solves a Parking Problem

Roy Ringo of 800-C South Washington St., Alexandria, Va., is telling this story about his wife—with just the right touch of admiration and envy.

Mrs. Ringo was in a big hurry to keep a dental appointment, and when she arrived at the parking meter she discovered that she'd forgotten all her money in the rush. She didn't even have a nickel for the meter.

A man would have admitted defeat, but Mrs. Ringo seized the bull by the horns (the bull on the beat, that is). She borrowed a nickel from a passing policeman, deposited it in the meter, and started on her way.

"Don't let me catch you staying here overtime," the cop called after her. "If I do, I'll have to..." Mrs. Ringo smiled reproachfully. "...I'll have to put in another nickel," the policeman finished lamely.

SOLELY ABOUT HEELS Harry O. Hine, of 1401 Fairmont St. N.W., reports this sign in Nick's Valet Shop, at 3115 14th St. N.W.:

"We mend the rip. Patch up the hole. Build up the heel. And save your sole."

Presumably heels whose souls need saving will have to apply elsewhere.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Congressional economies appear to be going too far. Sol Panitz, of 2707 Upshur St. N.E., Rainier, Md., reports that there's a sign at the Zoo which reads:

"Lost children will be taken to the Lion House."

Golly—can't we feed them surplus potatoes or something instead?

OUCH!

Fred Mac Millan, manager of Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, was sitting in his office minding his own business the other day when a stranger came charging in.

"Come with me," commanded the visitor. "I need you for a scavenger hunt."

Fred offered a mild protest, but being a good guy he went along. It turned out that Mike clubs, doubled, and made it by a squeeze. They were the only pair to bid and win a grand slam, though seven no trump can also be made by a squeeze.

The king of diamonds was opened, small was played from dummy and declarer Aronson trumped. He knew from West's three-diamond bid and East's double that the high hearts and queen of spades were held by East. With twelve top tricks he saw he had a squeeze for the last if he could catch East on both spades and hearts.

He took two rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy, cashed the ace of diamonds, discarding a heart, cashed the ace of hearts trumped a low heart in his hand and ran the rest of his clubs. On the lead of the last club this was the situation:

North: spades—A-J-8; heart 9; no diamonds or clubs.

East: spades—Q-10-7; heart K; no diamonds or clubs.

South: spades—K-9-3; no hearts or diamonds; club 9.

West: spades—6-5-3; heart 7; no diamonds or clubs.

The club was led and the spade eight tossed from dummy, and East was squeezed. If he let go a spade, South would take three spade tricks. If he let go the king of hearts, North would make the heart nine, and the two high spades would take the last two tricks. Either way South made seven clubs, doubled.

Hunnicut was conducting the scavenger hunt over WTTG (television) and Fred's visitor was one of the contestants.

Among other things, he was told to get a bowl of goldfish, a snood, a thimble, and a real live theater manager.

Triumphantly, he returned to the television studio with every article on his list, and won the prize.

Then Hunnicutt turned to Mac Millan and said:

"And to you, sir, for being a good sport and going along with a gag, here are two tickets to Lewy's Palace."

Dr. Wilder P. Montgomery, of 915 Florida Ave. N.W., writes:

"Last week I lost a letter which was very important to me. This week it has been returned to me by one who signs himself 'The Finder'."

"I feel great pride in fellow citizenship with this person, and would like him to know that his thoughtfulness is deeply appreciated."

Lyle Webster, of Falls Church, Va., is Director of Press Information at the Department of Agriculture.

The department loaned him to the Army some time ago for some special work in Japan, and Webster has just returned from that mission—with a good story.

At a party in Tokyo, some Japanese approached him and said:

"Mr. Webster, we're honored to have such a famous dictionary expert in our midst, and wonder if you'd be gracious enough to help us compile a modern dictionary of the Japanese language."

Lyle smiled and replied:

"Gentlemen, I'm afraid you have the wrong Webster. The only two words of Japanese I know are 'mushi-mushi' (hello hello) so it looks like my answer will have to be 'Noah'."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SIMMONS

"Dream Sleep" Mattress

at a New Low 36.95

What price for a good night's sleep? Just a fraction over a cent a night for one year . . . nothing ever after . . . with this Simmons "Dream Sleep." The innerspring mattress that pampers your spine . . . gently cradles every weary muscle. Simmons made it exclusively for The Hecht Co. in Washington. Put 220 high-fired coils in the double size to "give" with your every move. Cushioned them in layers of thick cotton felt and sisal top and bottom for extra buoyancy! Added a pre-built border to prevent sagging . . . keep "Dream Sleep" trim and shapely. Covered the whole job with heavy tan - striped cotton ticking. Securely anchored on handles for easy turning. The result . . . a mattress you sleep blissfully on . . . jump up from feeling gloriously refreshed after a good night's sleep. Twin and double sizes.
